

HOW MANY PEOPLE IN COSHOCTON? THE AGE IS GOING TO COUNT THEM

COSHOCTON MEN WERE SUGGESTED BY MINERS

Third Member of Arbitration Board Not Yet Named---President Green Interviewed.

William Green, sub-district president of the United Mine Workers arrived home from the southern part of the district Saturday morning and when interviewed by an Age reporter said that he had heard nothing new regarding the arbitration of the troubles of the Wade and Morgan Run mines.

"The time for the board of arbitration to act expires Monday," said he, "and just what action will then be taken, if nothing is done beforehand, I do not know as the matter is in the hands of the state officers."

"We have submitted to the two members of the arbitration board the names of a number of Coshocton gentlemen well qualified by their fairness and integrity to serve on the board but they have all been objected to. The other side has forwarded some names that we have not conscientiously been able to accept."

"I sincerely hope that work will be continued and that there will be no resumption of the strike. I hope for an immediate settlement."

State Vice President Dennis H. Sullivan left Saturday noon for Columbus and will not return home until after the national convention which convenes in Indianapolis a week from next Monday.

Mr. Sullivan stated to an Age reporter that he knew nothing of the affairs of the arbitrators of the Wade-Morgan Run affairs as he had been out over the district engaged in other work.

"I am hopeful of an immediate and amicable outcome" was the way he dismissed the matter.

State President Haskins is expected home this afternoon. He and President Green and other mine leaders will go to Columbus Monday for the state meeting. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Haskins and Mr. Sullivan will be re-elected president and vice president without opposition.

Miners employed at the two mines feel that there will be nothing to do Monday but again go out on strike.

House to House Canvas To Be Made And Every Subscriber of The Age is Invited to Make a Guess---Hundred Piece Pope-Gosser China Dinner Set To Be Given to Nearest Guess.

Almost five years have elapsed since the Federal Census was taken. In the meantime Coshocton has grown--how much, nobody knows. Every citizen of Coshocton would like to know. To wait another five years, until the next Federal Census shall be taken, is too long a wait in this period of Coshocton's rapid progress and do-it-now spirit.

The Age proposes to get that much-desired information now and give it to the public.

At the expense of The Age a count of Coshocton's population will be made within the next few weeks and the result will be published as soon as completed.

This will not only satisfy a keen local interest and gratify local pride, but it will also add to Coshocton's credit and prestige in the outside business world, showing, as it no doubt will, an unusually substantial per cent. of gain.

The Age has engaged the services of James D. Severns, former county treasurer, to make the count, and the work will be proceeded with at once. The people of Coshocton can aid and facilitate the work by giving the necessary information to the special enumerator promptly when he calls from house to house, and in every way helping to get every resident of Coshocton counted.

While the count is in progress everybody will be given one chance to guess on Coshocton's population and have that guess publicly recorded. The guesses will be published in The Age from time to time, and the person making the nearest correct guess will be given a fine 100-piece dinner set of the Pope-Gosser make.

Everybody guess. It costs you nothing. The Age pays the freight.

PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH CONGRESSMEN

Appropriations To Be Held Down Within Reason---Seven Peace Treaties Are Ripe.

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Washington, Jan. 7.—Republican leaders of the senate and house are at the White House this afternoon in conference with the president. Important matters are being discussed. An effort is being made in congress by Speaker Cannon and the members of the senate committee on appropriations to scale down all appropriations to be authorized at the present session. This has aroused some antagonism among senators and representatives who are interested in appropriations for river and harbor improvements for public buildings and for the extension of the navy. This is being threshed out at the conference.

It is suggested that legislation regarding the proposed increase of the powers of the interstate commerce commission, the tariff and the federal incorporation of companies doing an interstate business will be considered. It is known that the president is interested in the subject of the tariff to such an extent that he would call an extraordinary session of congress for its consideration, but it is said to be quite improbable that a session earlier than next fall will be called and it is not certain that one will be called for that time. The president desires, however, that affirmative action be taken by congress, both as to the tariff and as to the increase of the powers of the interstate commerce commission and he hopes this action may be taken at a reasonably early date.

TREATIES

Between the United States and Seven Foreign Governments.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Arbitration treaties between the United States and seven foreign governments were made public by order of the senate in executive session. The countries making the conventions are Great Britain, Portugal, France, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Spain. All of the treaties are drawn in practically the same form, one of the most important articles being as follows: "Differences which may arise of a legal nature, or relating to the interpretation of treaties existing between the two contracting parties, and which it may not have been possible to settle by diplomacy, shall be referred to the permanent court of arbitration established at The Hague by the convention of the 29th of July, 1899, provided, nevertheless, that they do not affect the vital interests, the independence, or the honor of the two contracting states and do not concern the interests of third parties."

FIGHTING TO BE FORCED BY THE VICTORIOUS JAPS

Now That Port Arthur is Theirs They Will Push Mukden.

[By Cable to The Age.]

Mukden, Jan. 7.—The night of Jan. 5 the Japanese turned searchlights on the Russian position at the village of Ingoy and tried to drive out the troops from the advanced positions, but were received with a hot rifle fire and driven back. The same day there was a collision of a Russian foraging party with Japanese scouts near the Hun river. The foragers left their carts, drove back the Japanese, took four prisoners and secured the body of a dead Japanese officer.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The Russian and Japanese embassies here assert that peace talk is vain. Japan has made no overtures for peace to Russia, directly or indirectly through the United States or any other power, contemplates no such action, and now that Port Arthur has fallen, proposes to press the war in the north all the more vigorously by reinforcing the Japanese armies at Liao Yang with the greater part of the troops which have been besieging Port Arthur. This in brief represents the views of Mr. Kogoro Takahira, Japanese minister, who has recently resumed charge of the legation at Washington after a Kogoro Takahira, Japanese minister. "The fall of Port Arthur," said the minister, "is but a step in the war which Japan is waging for a principle. Certainly it is an important step, but nothing could be further from the truth than the assumption that because Japan has captured a stronghold, the fall of which has long been expected, the Japanese government will now make overtures for peace. Japan is too busy fighting. We are as much in earnest today as we were at the outset of the war. We have made no overtures for peace, either directly or indirectly, nor have the powers approached us with any idea of intervention."

At the Russian embassy it was reiterated that Russia would fight all the harder in view of the temporary loss of Port Arthur. Europe, it is learned, is firmly of the conviction that, however dark the outlook for peace at this moment, when the prospect brightens it is to President Roosevelt that the neutrals, as well as the belligerents, will look as the intermediary through whom peace negotiations will be instituted.

$60,000 WORTH MRS. CHADWICK'S JEWELS ARE FOUND

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Cleveland, Jan. 7.—The investigation into the charge that large quantities of diamonds and jewels were smuggled into this country by parties returning from Europe with Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, has resulted in the location by the United States officers of some $60,000 worth of gems and diamonds says the Plain Dealer. The admission was made that the location of the jewels had been unearthed, but further than this the authorities refused to discuss the matter. It is known that there will be no immediate seizure of the property. At the same time, however, it is said that steps have already been taken to see that the smuggled gems are not removed pending seizure or whatever other method of action the government sees fit to adopt.

Communications with reference to the holding of the gems were sent from the district attorney's office. It is reported that some of the diamonds are lying in the safety deposit vaults of certain banks in this city and New York. On this point the federal authorities would say nothing. The reason that immediate seizure is not ordered is explained by the fact that the formal identification is necessary.

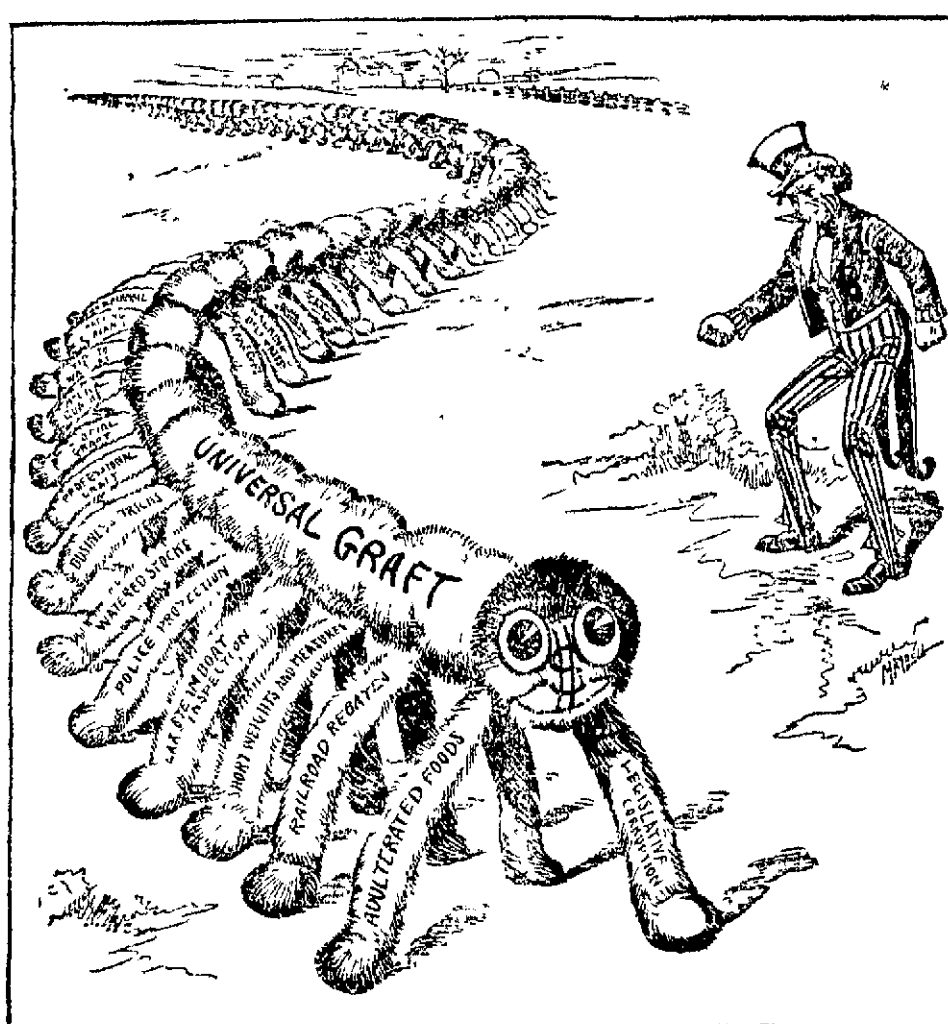

Chadwick Jewels.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The comptroller of the currency has in his possession an emerald ring and a diamond sunburst brooch that are said to have at one time belonged to Mrs. Chadwick. They were deposited with the failed Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., as collateral. When the bank failed the jewelry was taken possession of by the receiver and it will be sold the same as the other assets of the bank. They were not deposited by Mrs. Chadwick, although it is said they once belonged to her. The jewels have not been appraised and the comptroller is unable to approximate their value.

SINGING TO BE FEATURE OF SALVATION MEETINGS

Singing is to be a distinctive feature of the Salvation Army rally in this city Sunday. This afternoon there arrived from Urbichsville three gentlemen, all Englishmen, who will sing at the big meeting at the theatre Sunday afternoon and at the reception tonight and the rally Sunday night. They are Messrs. Smith, Buxton and Whitehouse. Mr. Smith is a bass and was a former choir master in the Church of England, and for six years a bandmaster in the Army. Mr. Buxton is a baritone and Mr. Whitehouse a tenor. They are said to give splendid programs.

NAN PATTERSON IN DELUGE OF TEARS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Miss Patterson became hysterical when Abraham Levy, her counsel, went to the Tombs and informed her of Justice Greenbaum's decision, denying her bail. She wept and waived her arms frantically, refusing to be comforted. Later when her father visited her at an attorney's scene took place. The young woman tried to restrain her emotion but finally threw her arms about her father's neck and burst into tears again. Her father was overcome and carried her home in a taxicab.

NEW MINES TO OPEN IN BELMONT

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Bellaire, O., Jan. 7.—Six mines are to be opened in Belmont county within the next three months that when in full operation will employ not less than 2,000 men. The Youghiogheny and Ohio Central Coal company is spending $50,000 to open one new mine on Glenn's run near Martin's Ferry, which will have a larger capacity than any mine in eastern Ohio save one, and the Pennsylvania railroad is building a three-mile railroad at a cost of $2,000 to reach it and other places to connect with the Y. & O. holdings.

DUN FINDS NEW YEAR TO BE PROMISING

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

New York, Jan. 7.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: Aside from some hesitation at the south, owing to the recent fall in price of cotton, business conditions are favorable, and optimistic sentiments are evidenced by extensive preparations for active trade. As annual reports appear it is found that the closing months of 1904 made a much better exhibit than the first half, which starts the new year with smaller stocks of goods in the hands of dealers, assuring liberal contracts in the near future for replenishing supplies. Failures for the week numbered 200 in the United States, against 400 last year and 25 in Canada, compared with 37 a year ago.

SENATE FINALLY CONFIRMS CRUM AS COLLECTOR

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Washington, Jan. 7.—The nomination of W. D. Crum, a negro, to be collector of customs for the port of Charleston, S. C., was confirmed by the senate in executive session by a vote of 33 to 17. Crum had been nominated by the president three times and in addition had received three recess appointments. He is now serving under the last of these recess appointments. Confirmation was opposed by Senator Tillman, who objected to the appointment of a negro. The race issue played a very insignificant part in the debate, which was participated in by fully a dozen senators. When Crum receives his commission he will be entitled to receive the salary which has accumulated since his last ap-

Urges Democrats to Stand With President in His Reforms.

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 7.—A banquet at which 400 covers were spread was tendered W. J. Bryan by the Jackson club of this city. Hard Wiggins, president of the club introduced Mr. Bryan as the next president of the United States. Bryan's subject was "Watchman, What of the Night?" After speaking of the causes which, in part, contributed to the recent defeat of the Democratic party, Mr. Bryan said the platform adopted at Kansas City expressed the views of more Democrats than any platform adopted since. He praised several recommendations made by President Roosevelt and spoke of him as doing many good things.

Mr. Bryan closed as follows: "Just now President Roosevelt gives some promise of beginning a reform movement. He recommends legislation which will inform the public in regard to campaign contributions. This is a far-reaching recommendation and should receive the earnest support of every Democrat. He also recommends an enlargement of the scope of the interstate commerce law. This, too, is a step in the right direction, and he should receive the support of all Democrats in any efforts which he makes to bring the railroads under more strict control. Our party must face the fact that a failure to properly regulate the railroads will compel the public ownership of the railroads. If the federal government operates only the trunk lines, leaving the states to operate the network of local lines, we can have public ownership without centralization, and, as I believe, without danger to any public interests."

PROPOSE PENSION FOR PRESIDENTS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Washington, Jan. 7.—Representative Maynard (Va.) in a bill proposes to increase the salary of the president to $75,000 a year, the vice president to $15,000, and to give the president a pension of $25,000 per annum on his retirement from office.

It will send free, with full instructions, some of this simple preparation for the cure of hemorrhoids, Ulceration, Dermatitis, Psoriasis of the limbs, Scabies, or other eruptions, or Gravel, or Catarrh of the Prostate, or Gleet, or Gonorrhea, or Syphilis, or any other disease, to all persons who apply for it. It is a most valuable remedy, and is sold by all druggists.

THE STROLLERS

By FREDERIC S. ISHAM,
Author of "Under the Rose"

Copyright, 1922, by THE BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY

With fingers he could hardly control
he opened a second bottle, dispensed

"I'll arrest every mother's son of you!"

with the formality of a glass and set the neck to his lips, repeating the operation until it was empty, when he tossed it out of the window to be shattered against a rock, after which he sank again into a semibreve of meditation.

Disappointed over her ineffectual efforts, overcome by the strain, the young girl for the time relaxed all further attempt.

Despairingly she observed how the sun dipped and ever dipped toward the west, when suddenly a sound afar rekindled her fainting spirits. Listening more attentively, she was assured imagination had not deceived her. It was the faint pitter of a horse's hoofs.

Nearer it drew. Quicker beat her pulses. Moreover, it was the rattle-tat of galloping. Some one was pursuing the coach on horseback.

Immersed in his own grapevine castle, her jester was unmindful of the approaching rider, and she turned her face from him that he might not read her exultation. Closer resounded the beating hoofs.

Who was the horseman? Was it Baron? Saint-Prospere? The latter's name had quickly suggested itself to her.

Although the rider, whoever he might be, continued to gain ground, to her companion the approaching clatter was inseparable from the noise of the vehicle, and it was not until the horseman was nearly abreast and the cadence of the galloping resolved itself into clangor that the dreamer awoke with an imprecation. As he sprang to his feet, thus rudely disturbed, a
stern voice called to the driver:

"Stop the coach!"

Probably the command was given over the persuasive point of a weapon, for the animals were drawn up with a quick jerk and came to a standstill in the middle of the road. Menacing and abusive as the vehicle stopped, the warder's hand sought one of his pocket-ets, when the young girl impetuously caught his arm, clinging to it tenaciously.

"Quick, Mr. Saint-Prospere!" she cried, recognizing, as she thought, the voice of the soldier.

"You wildest!" her jester exclaimed,
struggling to throw her off.

Not succeeding, he raised his free arm in a flurry of invective.

"Curse you! Will you let go?"

"Quick! Quick!" she called out, holding him more tightly.

A flood of billingsgate flowed from his lips. "Let go, or—"

But before he could in his blind passion strike her or otherwise vent his rage a revolver was clapped to his face through the window, and, with a look of surprise and terror, his valor oozing from him, he crouched back on the cushions. At the same time the carriage door was thrown open, and Edward Mauville, the patron, stood in the entrance!

Only an instant his eyes swept her,
observing the flushed cheeks and dis-ordered attire, reading her wonder at his unexpected appearance, and—to his satisfaction—her relief as well;
only an instant, during which the warder stared at him open mouthed, and then his glance rested on the now thoroughly sober limb of the law.

"Get out!" he said briefly and harshly.

"But," began the other with a sickly grim, intended to be ingratiating, "I don't understand—this unexpected manner—this forcible departure from—"

Coolly raising his weapon, the patron deliberately covered the hapless jailer, who unceremoniously scrambled out of the door. The land baron laughed, replaced his revolver and, turning to the young girl, removed his hat.

"It was fortunate, Miss Carew, I happened along," he said gravely.
"With your permission I will get in.
You can tell me what has happened as we drive along. The manor house, my temporary home, is not far from here.
If I can be of any service command me!"

The jester saw the patron spring into the carriage, having fastened his horse behind, and drive on.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE afternoon was waning.
Against the golden western sky the old manor house loomed in solemn majesty, the fields and forests emphasizing its isolation in the darkening hour of sunset,
as a coach, with jaded horses, passed through the avenue of trees and approached the broad portico. A great string of trailing vine had been torn from the walls by the wind and now waved mournfully to and fro with no hand to adjust it. In the rear was a huge timbered barn, the door of which was unfurnished, swinging on its rusty hinges with a creaking and moaning sound.

As gayly as in the days when the periwigged coachman had driven the elaborate equipage of the early patrons through the wrought iron gate, this modern descendant entered the historic portals, not to be met, however, by servitors in knee breeches at the front door, but by the solitary caretaker, who appeared on the portico in considerable disorder and evident state of excitement, accompanied by the shaggy dog Oloffe.

"The deputies shot two of the tenants today," hurriedly exclaimed the guardian of the place, without noticing Mauville's companion. "The farmers fired upon them; they replied, and one of the tenants is dead."

"A good lesson for them, since they were the aggressors!" cried the heir as he sprang from the coach. "But you have startled the lady."

An exclamation from the vehicle in an unmistakably feminine voice caused the "wachtmeester" now to observe the occupant for the first time, and the servant threw up his hands in consternation. Here was a master who drank all night, shot his tenants by proxy, visited strollers and now brought one of them to the steyn. That the strange lady was a player Oly-kocks immediately made up his mind, and he viewed her with mingled aversion and fear, as the early settlers regarded sorcerers and witches. She was very beautiful, he observed in that quick glance, but therefore the more dangerous. She appeared distressed, but he attributed her apparent grief to artfulness.

At once saw a new source of trouble in her presence, as though the threads were not already sufficiently entangled without the introduction of a woman—and she a public performer—into the complicated mesh!

"Fasten the iron shutters of the house," briefly commanded Mauville, breaking in upon the servant's painful reverie. "Then help this man change
the horses and put in the grays."

Oly-kocks, with a final deprecatory glance at the coach expressive of his estimate of his master's light conduct and his apprehension of the outcome, disappeared to obey this order.

"May I assist you, Miss Carew?" said
the land baron deferentially, offering his arm to the young girl, whose pale but observant face disclosed new desire and inquiry.

"But you said we would go right on?"
she returned, drawing back with implied dissent.

"When the horses are changed, if you will step out the carriage will be driven to the barn."

Reluctantly she obeyed, and as she did so the patron and the coachman exchanged pithy glances.

"Look sharp!" commanded the master sternly. "Oh, he won't run away," added Mauville quickly in answer to her look of surprise. "He knows I could find him and—fingering his revolver—"will not dissolve me. Later we'll hear the rogue's story."

The man's averted countenance smothered a clandestine smile as he touched the horses with his whip and turned them toward the barn, leaving the patron and his companion alone on the broad portico. Sweeping from a distant grove of slender poplars and snow birches a breeze bore down upon them suddenly bleak and frosty, and she shivered in the nipping air.

"You are chilled!" he cried. "If you would but go into the house while we are waiting! Indeed, if you do not I shall wonder how I have offended you.
It will be something to remember"— half lightly, half seriously—"that you have crossed my threshold."

He stood at the door with such an undissembled smile, his accents so regretful, that after a moment's hesitation Constance entered, followed by the patron. Sweeping aside the heavy draperies from the window, he permitted the golden shafts of the ebbing day to enter the hall, gleaming on the polished floors, the wainscoting and the furniture, faintly illuminating the faded pictures and weirdly revealing
the turnings of the massive stairway.
No wonder a half shudder of apprension seized the young actress in spite of her self reliance and courage as she entered the solemn and mournful place, where past grandeur offered nothing save morbid memories and where the frailty of existence was significantly written! After that Indian summer day the sun was sinking, angry and fery, as though preening a speedy reform in the vagaries of the season and an immediate return to the legitimate surroundings of October.

Involuntarily the girl moved to the

the patron's coat, and, as if to this end was stirred anew, dissipating any intrusive doubts. The veering and flickering sheer seemed but a web of entangling irradiation. A span of silence became an interminable period to her, with no sight of fresh horses or sign of preparation for the home journey.

"What takes him so long?" she said
finally, with impatience. "It is getting so late!"

"It is late," he answered. "Almost too late to go on! You are weary and worn. Why not rest here tonight?"
"Rest here?" she repeated, with a start of surprise.

"You are not fit to drive farther. Tomorrow we can return."

"Tomorrow," she cried. "But—what do you mean?"

"That I must insist upon your sparing yourself," he said firmly, although a red spot flushed his cheek.

"No, no! We must leave at once!"
she answered.

He smiled reassuringly. "Why will you not have confidence in me?" he asked. "You have not the strength to travel all night over a rough road after such a trying day. For your own sake, I beg you to give up the idea.
Here you are perfectly safe and may rest undisturbed."

"Please call the horses at once!"

An impatient expression furrowed his brow. He had relied on easily prevailing upon her through her gratitude, continuing in his disinterested role for yet some time, resuming the journey on the morrow, carrying her farther away under pretext of mistaking the road, until— Here his plans had faded into a vague perspective, dominated by unreasoning self confidence and egotism.

But her words threatened a rupture
at the outset that would seriously alter
the status of the adventure.

"It is a mistake to go on tonight,"
he said, with a dissenting gesture.

"However, if you are determined"—
And Mauville stepped to the window.

"Why, the carriage is not there!" he exclaimed, looking out.

"Not there!" she repeated incredulously. "You told them to change the horses. Why?"

"I don't understand," returned the land baron, with an effort to make his voice surprised and concerned. "He may—Hello, there! You!—Olykocks!" he called out, interrupting his own explanation.

Not Oly-kocks, but the driver's face,
appeared from behind the barn door,
and, gazing through the window, the young girl with a start suddenly realized that she had seen him not for the first time that day—but where,
when? Through the growing perplexity of her thoughts she heard the voice of her companion.

"Why don't you hitch up the grays?"

"There are no horses in the barn," came the answer.

"Strange!" the caretaker did not tell me they had been taken away!" commented the other, hastily stepping from the window as the driver vanished once more into the barn. "I am sorry, but there seems no alternative but to wait, at least until I can send for others."

She continued to gaze toward the door through which the man had disappeared. She could place him now, although his liveliness had been discarded for shabby clothes. She recalled him distinctly in spite of this changed appearance.

"Why not make the best of it?" said
Mauville softly, but with glance sparking in spite of himself. "After all,
are you not giving yourself needless apprehensions? You are at home here.
Anything you wish shall be yours.
Consider yourself mistress, me one of your servants!"

Almost imperceptibly his manner had changed. Instinctive misgivings which had assailed her in the coach trick to get me here!"

"If you would but listen!"

"When—her eyes ablaze—"will this farce end?"

Her words took him unawares. Not that he dreaded the betrayal of his actual purpose. On the contrary, his reckless temper, chafing under her unexpected obduracy, now welcomed the opportunity of discarding the disinterested and chivalrous part he had assumed.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For Lady's Dressing Sack Designed by Martha Dean

This is the season when every woman is getting the most good of her dressing sacks. They are so comfortable that one garment and are so easily made that little should have a goodly supply. They are garments that the home dressmaker is sure of, for, no matter what the material or style they can be easily made at home and with most gratifying results. Many women make kimonos from their last season's lawn dresses, and by the addition of white or contrasting bands the cost is simply nothing. The model shown here is one of those loose flowing styles, without the least suggestion of slimpiness as usually found in ready made wear. The pattern provides for a full length garment or as illustrated, lawn, challie, silk and crape are used.

It does not, however, appear to be the most serious. The commission, or the master spirit of the commission, if there is one, seems to be in conflict with the chief engineer, and there are reported to be other conflicts concerning the limits of authority of certain officials.
While it may be impossible to place the blame for these dissensions, the work on the canal is not likely to be expedited or helped in any way by them, nor are they apt to cease. It has happened before today that most excellent men in charge of an enterprise have become tangled and at cross-purposes with each other at the outset, and there was no remedy. The only thing to be done was to rub out and begin all over again. A commission of three persons with the proper administrative ability would seem to be preferable to the cumbersome body now in charge. It is not likely that congress will place the administration work in charge of the chief engineer. He will have quite enough to do in attending to his legitimate business.

JUDGE VOORHEES
The term of Judge R. M. Voorhees as circuit judge will expire next month and he will retire to private life, resuming his law practice with his son, B. E. Voorhees, in the office in the Tribune block. Judge Voorhees has been a judicious, pains taking and impartial official during his term on the circuit bench and has given the utmost satisfaction by his fair manner of rendering decisions and by the legal acumen which he brought to bear upon important cases. It is probable that he will not appear in the Coshocton court house again in his judicial capacity, as the next session of the circuit court in this county will not come until after his successor, Hon. Frank Taggart, of Wooster, has taken his seat on the bench. Judge Taggart is a man eminently fitted to serve as circuit judge and his legal knowledge and honest methods are already familiar to the people of Coshocton county. He having served on the common pleas bench in this district. He will be welcomed back both by the attorneys and litigants as a man who deals out nothing but justice.

Sage... Please Pass the Pie.
A little boy of only four calls across the table And asks for more and more. And stuffs in all he's able. But never forgets to cry "Please pass the pie."

All through life it's thus At festal board or store-room, A passion given us At plow or in the forum, We never forget the cry "Please pass the pie."

On every painted board, Or other advertisement, A glittering like a sword For some one's aggrandisement You hear that same old cry "Please pass the pie."

In law or politics In shop or melalurgy, Whatever kind of mix, Or even in the clergy, You hear that pleading cry "Please pass the pie"

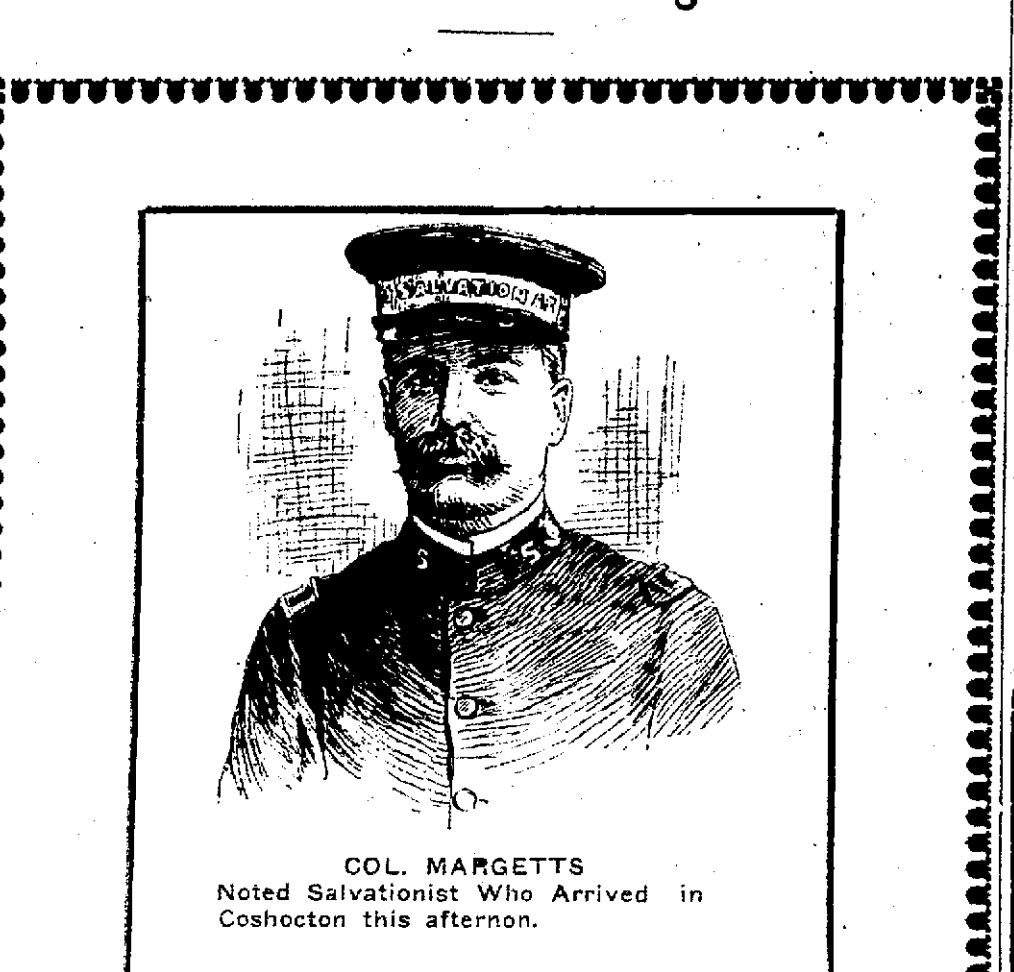

The cry is for a share Of every financial blessing It's always in the air; The world is ever guessing, You hear it low and high, "Please pass the pie."

SALVATION ARMY CENTER OF SUNDAY ATTRACTIONS

Noted Salvationists to Occupy Pulpits Sunday Morning---Big Sunday Afternoon Meeting.

COL. MARGETTS
Noted Salvationist Who Arrived in Coshocton this afternoon.

The main topic of interest in church circles is the coming tonight and tomorrow of Co. J. E. Margetts, of New York, one of the noted leaders of the Salvation Army, together with Staff Captain Ivings, of Cleveland. Both are said to be speakers of exceptional ability and arer earnestness.

There will be a public reception to the two visitors at city hall this evening and a cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend.

Sunday morning Col. Margetts will occupy the Presbyterian pulpit at the Sixth Street theatre and Capt. Ivings will preach at the First (Grace) M. E. church.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a big union meeting at the theatre to which everyone is invited, at which time Col. Margetts will speak on the topic he knows so well—"Is a Child Worth Saving?"

Sunday evening at city hall there will be a grand closing rally and an earnest invitation is extended to the public, church-goers and those who do not attend church, to be present.

Adjutant Brindley has made all preparations for the coming of the noted speakers and a general interest is manifest throughout the city. The Salvation Army is doing good work in Coshocton and the public generally.

(Addition Church Announcements on Page Six.)

Rev. Fr. Caine, a Dominican father from St. Aloysius academy at New Lexington, will have charge of the services at Sacred Heart church and at Willis Creek mission this Sunday. Rev. Father Synan's health is gradually improving and as soon as he feels able to stand the trip he will leave for Florida as planned by his congregation.

At the U. B. church in the evening Rev. C. C. Jones, pastor of the Christian church will preach, he having no services in his own congregation that evening.

A double shift of men was put to work and the work continued all night. The board of public service is doing all in its power to expedite the work and one of the members states that the contractor is also making an effort to complete the work, although it is necessarily slow.

The Present Outlook In China

By Dr. W. E. MACKLIN of Nankin, China

I THINK the Chinese nation has a great future. The Chinese are a very laborious people and are hard workers. They are physically hardy, and scholars in this country consider them SUPERIOR TO THE JAPANESE. The Chinese are not aggressive, and I do not think that there is very much to be feared from them.

I would like to see England and America open up China and develop the country. Japanese professors are being secured in the new universities, and I would rather see westerners AND WESTERN IDEAS implanted instead.

I DO NOT THINK THAT THERE WILL EVER BE A BOXER UP-RISING IN CHINA WHICH WILL ENDANGER THE FOREIGNERS IN THE COUNTRY TO ANY GREAT EXTENT.

The Boxer trouble was caused by the calling down of the wrath of the gods and dead rulers upon the foreigners to drive them out of the country. The uprisings could have been stopped at any time by the government, BUT THE GOVERNMENT WAS BACK OF IT. It is not likely that the government will undertake another Boxer movement.

Do not undervalue the services of a skilful physician. Even the best medicine cannot take the place of the family doctor. Therefore we say: Consult your physician freely about your case and ask him what he thinks about your taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for your cough. If he says take it, then take it. If he says do not take it, then follow his advice.

AYER'S PECTORAL
THE DOSE
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
Adult Male... 40 to 70 drops
Adult Female 30 to 50 drops
15 years old... 25 to 30 drops
10 years old... 20 to 25 drops
5 years old... 12 to 15 drops

WHAT THEY SAY

I bought an Olds Runabout of Mr. Forbes in July of this year. Have used it nearly every day since, running it anywhere from ten miles to ninety miles a day, and it has not cost me one penny for repairs.
GEORGE L. CATON.

The Oldsmobile, Runabout I bought from Mr. Forbes, early in the summer, has given the best of satisfaction. It is very speedy, reliable and most satisfactory. While I used it a great deal for pleasure I found it almost indispensable in my business as a contractor.
ROSS KIRK.

I bought recently of Mr. Forbes, an Olds Touring Runabout which carries two people. It is simply a marvel in speed, hill climbing abilities, comfort and ease in handling. Could I not get another just like it I would not take a thousand dollars for the little car.
DR. L. C. McCURDY.

Early in 1904 I bought of Mr. Forbes an Olds Touring car which is intended to carry four or five people. I have run this car 3600 miles, and I think it is running today better than when it came from the factory. In a recent trip of 140 miles with five people, she averaged 15 miles an hour over roads good, bad and indifferent. For the price I cannot say too much in favor of this make of car.
DR. F. M. MARSHALL.

I own one of the Olds Touring cars sold by Mr. Forbes. In its class I do not know of a car that will excel it. M. J. ADAMS.

I purchased of Mr. Forbes a Winton Touring car which I have driven about 150 miles without any expense whatever for repairs and I am more than pleased with the machine.
T. H. WHEELER.

I have been using all summer an Olds Runabout purchased from Mr. Forbes. It has done all and more than claimed for it and notwithstanding its use I consider it as good as new.
CHARLES HEIMAN.

Torpedo Boats For Russia.
New York, Jan. 7.—It is believed among shipping men of this port that the sections which will eventually compose nine torpedo boats, built by Lewis Nixon, were placed on board a freight steamer somewhere in New York harbor or bay to be shipped to a Russian port. The sections were loaded on a barge at Perth Amboy, N. J., and towed down the harbor, where all trace of them was lost. Mr. Nixon is silent as to their destination.

City Hall Consumed.
Springfield, Mass., Jan. 7.—The city hall, a two story brick structure completed in 1855 at a cost of $75,000, was destroyed by fire. A food fair was in progress on the second floor. The fire is believed to have been caused by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp. Two women employees of the city were overcome by smoke, but were taken out unharmed. A city official said that he believed the loss would be about $200,000.

Opposed to Tariff on Leather.
Chicago, Jan. 7.—At a meeting of representatives of 100 shoe manufacturers, members of the Western Association of Shoe Wholesalers, here, a resolution was adopted in which the association places itself on record as opposed to the tariff on leather. In the resolution it is stated that congress will be asked to repeal the rates now existing on hides and leather.

Animals Died.
Washington, Jan. 7.—The Honors and male baboon which formed part of King Menelik's recent gift to President Roosevelt, have died at the National Zoological park. The baboon died from tuberculosis and the Honors from chronic kidney and liver ailments.

Next Week's Bill.
 For one week commencing Monday Jan. 9, Charles Lamb's Murray Comedy company, with Miss Clara Hazel, will produce a repertoire of new and popular plays at the Sixth Street theatre. The company consists of seven. They have selected for their opening play a realistic portrayal of New York life, full of interesting and amusing events. Every act teems with sensation, heart interest and rollicking fun. The company is an excellent one, unusually strong and his generosity, and upon the side his horse-trading—and he kept the audience in a gale of merriment with his witticisms and quaint philosophy. The part was admirably played by Harry Brown.

 The other members of the cast took their parts well. Nell Burton as the horse trading deacon was excellent. His attempts to drive the balky bay horse in a driving rain brought down the house. Leo Hardman was Dick Larabee with a very contagious laugh. Howard Morgan played the part of Zeka Swinney, a typical old skin-flint. Pliny F. Rutledge convulsed the audience with his rendition of the character of Chet Timson and Miss Louise Harding as Mary Blake and Richard Gordon as John Lennox took their parts well, especially

My Wife's Family.
 One of the many artistic dresses worn by Miss Isabel Allan in her performance of the "Actress" in Hal Stephens and Harry Linton's uproariously quaint and laughable musical farce comedy, "My Wife's Family," which comes to the Sixth Street theatre on Thursday, January 12 is a creation of the "divine" Worth of Paris, and has caused a mild sensation among the feminine hearts wherever Miss Allan has worn it.

A perfect fitting skirt of Valenciennes lace; the medallion of which are heavily incrustated with finest rhinestones; with dainty chiffon interlining on a peach blossom taffeta foundation, heavily lined with lace festoons, the top flounce being edged with Morocco green velvet caught up with XXI bows fastened by small diamond clasps. A blouse with a yoke of tucked net between insertions of real lace finished with a bertha and velvet baby ribbons; with elbow sleeves of lace and frills; complete a gown which sets off Miss Allan's graceful figure and autumn beauty to perfection.

Nearly all Miss Allan's dresses, of which she carries a large number, are the outcome of the world's greatest mind on things for feminine wear and have been designed not only with the view of showing forth Miss Allan's own person charms, which scarcely need the off setting of rich apparel, but to fit the various characters Miss Allan loves to portray.

In the part of the "Actress," Miss Allan has a part in which she simply revels, for as she most naively says: "I got a chance to show off all my pretty gowns, don't you know?" which shows that in spite of all her talent, Miss Allan is a woman after all.

David a Winner.
 A good sized audience but one below the desert of the performance greeted the "David Harum" company at the Sixth Street theatre Friday evening. The book from which the play was made has enjoyed a wide spread popularity and the play is enjoying the same good fortune—has enjoyed it for several seasons.
 Of course David Harum himself, the kind hearted old banker and horse-trader is practically the whole thing. The entire plot turns upon Vessel Abandoned at Sea.

 Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 7.—The Gloucester schooner Theodore Roosevelt arrived in port bringing the captain, two mates, steward, four seamen and the captain's wife of the British brigantine Ohio, from Kingsport, N. S., for New York, with a cargo of lumber. The Ohio was abandoned leaking and badly crippled by the gale off Grand Manan. The Roosevelt put on board the brigantine a prize crew of eight men, who are trying to work the vessel into this harbor.

CAMELS TO HUMP AT BLOWOUT TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday evening January 10, the Coshocton lodge of Camels will have an opportunity to witness the great Sovereign Monarch in the work of conferring the first and second degrees. Three candidates will cross the dreary desert on that occasion.

O. H. Long has received his commission as lodge deputy for this district. Arrangements are on foot for the purchase of fifty new uniforms for public demonstration.

The movement will, if given proper support by the members, make the display work of the Coshocton lodge of Camels second to none in the city.

thür, and that since September, when the first general order was issued announcing a scarcity, the greatest economy was exercised. Baron Kleist says the Japanese fire on the forts was so accurate that the men regarded an order to fire in a fort as a sentence to death. Many died without visible wounds from the mere violence of the concussion of huge Japanese shells, which made blood burst from the eyes, mouth and nostrils of those standing near.

Surprised the Japs.
 Mukden, Jan. 7.—A party of Siberian volunteers surrounded the village of Binlountoun, which the Japanese had been using as a signal station. While one column made a demonstration on the left front, three others, under command of Captain Toviavsky, rushed the rear of the village without firing and caught the Japanese unexpectedly, driving them from the village. Subsequently the Japanese opened a heavy fire from the neighboring hills which compelled the Russians to retire from the village. They carried off 12 prisoners seven of whom were wounded. The Russian loss was nine killed.

Troop Trains En Rout
 Irkutsk, Jan. 7.—Many troop trains are passing south through this place on the way to reinforce the Russian army in Manchuria. The news of the fall of Port Arthur was received by the new soldiers with sadness, but they express an undiminished determination to retake it. The chief regret expressed by soldiers and officers is that they did not arrive in time to relieve the heroic garrison.

BISHOP SPALDING VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]
 Peoria, Ill., Jan. 7.—Bishop John L. Spalding is at his residence in this city suffering from a severe paralytic stroke. While his condition is said not to be dangerous, it is serious enough to keep his brother, Dr. Leonard H. Spalding by his side continuously. The entire left side of the bishop's body is affected and for several hours after the stroke he was unable to speak. The bishop is 65 years old, and while he has been in fair health practically all his life, his age tends to add to the fear of his friends for another and more serious attack.

COLORADO SOLONS DWELL IN CHAOS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]
 Denver, Jan. 7.—Behind locked doors and amid scenes of great confusion and excitement, the Colorado legislature passed a resolution creating a committee of 15 members to canvass the vote cast for governor at the last election, and submit a final report to the legislature not later than 2 o'clock on the afternoon of next Monday. The committee is composed of five senators and ten representatives, the political divisions being 12 Republicans and three Democrats. It organized by the election of Senator Arthur Cornforth of Colorado Springs as chairman, and commenced the hearing of evidence immediately.

ANSWER FILED BIG TAX SUIT

Finley Estate Replies in Court—Other Court Briefs.

The answer in the suit for back taxes in the sum of $2868.75 brought by Richard Clark, as treasurer of Coshocton county vs W. R. Gault and Edwin Brown, as executors of the last will of R. E. Finley, was filed in common pleas court, Saturday morning.

The answer recites that since the filing of the petition one of the defendants, Edwin Brown, has died, and that all the taxes for which the estate of R. E. Finley was liable have been paid.

It states that on Feb. 27, 1900 Mr. Finley loaned the First National bank of Newcomerstown three per cent. bonds to the amount of $12,500 to be deposited with the treasurer of the United States to secure the circulating notes issued by the bank and a contract was entered into whereby the bank agreed to return the bonds upon sixty days' notice or their equivalent in money, the amount to be the selling price of the bonds on the New York stock exchange on the day of their return. When the bonds were returned $5000 was to be registered and $7500 on the coupon.

The answer further recites that Mr. Finley never disposed of his title to these bonds and they formed part of his estate at his death. March 1, 1904 at the direction of the defendant, the bank sold the bonds and paid him $12,300 as the proceeds.

By a second contract, attached to the answer, the bank agreed to pay Mr. Finley the interest received on the $12,500 bonds and $156.25 per annum additional payable, quarterly.

The defendant, represented by T. H. Wheeler and W. R. Gault, asks that the action be dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff, who is represented by Tax Inquisitor W. A. Hosack and Judge T. C. Roche.

The Commissioners.

At their January meeting the county commissioners books show the following business transacted:

Coroner-elect Thomas W. Lear's bond for $5000 accepted with S. M. Henry and J. H. Lear as sureties.

Infirmary Director-elect G. W. Meek's bond for $2000 accepted with Seth M. Snyder, J. J. Rose, C. B. McCoy, W. A. Himebaugh, Richard Meek and M. S. Reed as sureties.

Wants Road Sold.

Wapakoneta, O., Jan. 7.—E. S. Nichols, receiver of the Sandusky Southwestern Railway company, filed a petition in the common pleas court stating that the company is insolvent and wholly unable to pay its debts, and asking for an order to sell all the property, roadbed, right of way and franchise. Claims to the amount of $41,000 have been filed to date. The company owns about 61 miles of right of way on its main line and branches. The receiver also alleges that the mortgage to secure the bonds delivered to the Cleveland Trust company for $1,500,000 is null and void and now of no value whatever, and asks that said Cleveland Trust company and several other large lien holders, including the F. H. Blodgett company of West Virginia, be made parties defendant.

Gillespie's Motion Overruled.

Rising Sun, Ind., Jan. 7.—James Gillespie, convicted by a jury for the murder of his twin sister, Elizabeth, was sentenced by Judge Nicholas Cornet to the penitentiary for life. When Judge Cornet announced he would pass sentence Gillespie arose and calmly faced the court. When asked if he had any reason to offer why judgment should not be pronounced, he remained silent, but his attorney, Captain Coles, said he was authorized to say for his client, "although convicted, I am not guilty." A motion for a new trial was promptly overruled. Gillespie then prayed an appeal to the supreme court, which was granted and 60 days were given in which to file his bill of exceptions. The cases of Myron Barbour, Belle Seward and Carrie Barbour were continued until the March term of the Ohio county court.

(By Cable to The Age.)

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—The report is current that Foreign Minister Lamsdorff is for concluding peace with Japan. His attitude is said to have aroused the war party to a frenzy and there are whisperings of serious palace complications regarding the war question.

Paris, Jan. 9.—The North Sea commission resumed its meetings today.

Forest of Shoe Pegs

A Coshocton forest is to be made into shoe-pegs. Last week Porter Mitchell of Newcomerstown sold a large tract of timber on his farm, located five miles south of that city in this county, to a Cleveland house for a snug sum. The Cleveland lumbermen have a mammoth contract with a big Massachusetts shoe factory to furnish it with shoe pegs and expect to convert the entire lot of timber into sole savers for the bootmakers.

Admiral Fournier (France) was unanimously chosen permanent president.

Tokyo, Jan. 9.—Generals Fock and Smirnov have decided to go to Japan as prisoners of war. General Smirnov was in command of the forts at Port Arthur and General Fock commanded the Fourth division of the army there. General Fock says he will drill his men in Japan. Fifty per cent of the Russian officers will go to Japan and share with their men the fate of prisoners of war. There are five Russian admirals at Port Arthur, one of whom will go to Japan. Among the admirals is a prince. Twelve foreign naval attaches have visited Port Arthur and inspected the remains of the Russian fleet.

The transfer of prisoners at Port Arthur has been completed. The total number of officers transferred was 878, men 23,491.

The Japanese intend to establish a naval station at Port Arthur. Vice Admiral Y. Shibayama will probably be placed in charge of it. The military administration at Port Arthur will retain only a small garrison as soon as the prisoners are withdrawn and order is restored. The fleet is busily engaged in clearing mines, but owing to their great number navigation will be unsafe for a long time. Only government craft will be allowed to enter the harbor. It is probable that Dalny will soon be opened up to neutrals. Japanese companies are preparing to establish weekly services at that port.

Will Continue the War.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—The conferences which Emperor Nicholas has been holding with members of the council of the empire, M. Witte and other ministers and advisers on the international and external situation have not yet been concluded, but nothing has occurred which would indicate that the government is prepared to depart from its present program of continued war.

Feels Sure of Result of Whole State

Looks to be no let-up on Gubernatorial Squabble.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Denver, Colo., Jan. 9.—2 p. m.—Governor Peabody says he will offer no contest.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 9.—It is reliably stated it is Governor Peabody's intention to contest the election of Governor-elect Adams. He has several days in which to file his notice of contest, and he may not do so until after the inauguration of Governor-elect Adams. The latter said: "I do not know whether Governor Peabody will make a contest or not, but I expect that he will. I am in a much better position for such a proceeding now than I was two days ago. At that time the investigation was confined by the court to the city and county of Denver. Now it includes the whole state, and I feel confident that the Democrats can show as many or more fraudulent Republican votes in the outlying counties as the Republicans claim were cast by the Democrats in Denver. I am certain of the result if the entire state is brought into the contest, as it must be if Governor Peabody decides on such a course."

A warm fight is expected when the nominations for judges of the supreme court made by Governor Peabody come up for confirmation. The Democrats held a caucus and at its close declared that they would fight the nominations to the supreme bench of Bailey and Goddard with all their power. They claim, moreover, that with the Republican senators, Campbell and DeLong, voting with them, they will be able to prevent the confirmation. The Republican leaders declared that they have received personal pledges from enough Republican senators to insure the confirmation of the two men.

CHADWICK GEMS LIKE THE FLEA OF IRISHMAN

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—Commenting upon the fact that he had been served with an order by the federal authorities "to produce certain diamonds and gems," Attorney J. P. Dawley, counsel for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, said: "I have not received so much as a pewter shoe buckle from either Mrs. Chadwick or her husband, Dr. Chadwick. The serving of such an order strikes me as being humorous. Mrs. Chadwick has certainly not turned any diamonds over to me." Mr. Dawley stated further that there would be no delay in the trial of the Chadwick case so far as the defense was concerned.

STORM RAGING IN WEST VIRGINIA

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 9.—Reports from the interior of West Virginia tell of furious snowstorms in the mountains. At Weston the snowfall is 20 inches. At Pickets it reached 30 inches. At Grafton there is 18 inches, and at all other points reported the fall ranges from 20 to 24 inches. Telegraph, telephone, railroad and highway traffic is seriously interfered with.

BISHOP SPALDING IS MUCH BETTER

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 9.—There was a noticeable improvement in the condition of Bishop John L. Spalding, the Catholic prelate, who was suddenly stricken with paralysis at his residence Friday afternoon. He regained somewhat the use of his left arm and showed some more freedom. The recovery was, however, slight.

It is seldom a man is enabled to tell of his own funeral service, but there is a gentleman in Coshocton just now who has that rare distinction.

He is Emmet Hagans, a lawyer of Crawfordsville, Ind., who is visiting at the home of C. W. Scott, his brother-in-law on East Main street. Mrs. Hagans has been here for some time.

Mr. Hagans went to the Philippines at the breaking out of the war there and was a sergeant-major of a regiment. The climate and water overcame him and he was sent to the hospital. While there the bubonic plague broke out in a ward, and he and 66 others were quarantined in what looked like a living death. Of the 67 only eight came out alive. One of them was Mr. Hagans although his name was wired to this country among the list of the dead.

His father who was Rev. Mr. Hagans, of Shelbyville, Ind., and a former resident of Coshocton county, re-

The Wade and Morgan Run mines may continue work until after the state meeting of the United Mine Workers, which is to begin Tuesday morning at Columbus.

The troubles of these mines are under consideration today by the state executive board in session at Columbus.

It is considered probable that the matter will be brought before the convention at Tuesday or Wednesday's session. State President Haskins and District President Green left this morning on an early train for Columbus. Neither had anything to say about the mining troubles except to express the hope that the miners would remain at work until after the convention as some action would doubtless be taken there for their welfare.

State Vice President Sullivan went Saturday. Both he and President

DEEP WATERWAY SEEMS AS-

Engineer Perkins is Hopeful and Will

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Governor Herrick will approve the contracts for increased rentals for use of water by manufacturers on the northern division of the Ohio canal. This is held to be a step toward the creation of a deep water link between Lake Erie and the Ohio river.

The board of public works, in session here, will hear the report of Chief Engineer Charles Perkins. It is believed that the final details of the project to raise rentals to $30,000,000 annually have been completed. Colonel Perkins is expected to report complete plans for the improvement. This will enable the board to let contracts for the work at once. The contracts must be let before Feb. 15, otherwise on that date the first appropriation of $75,000 would lapse back into the state treasury. For the current year there is also available the second appropriation of $125,000. These amounts will not be sufficient to provide a seven-foot canal from Cleveland to Dresden, where the Muskingum river is to be tapped, but it will carry the improvement so far that the legislature will not think of abandoning it, but will care for it until finished. Inland navigation from Lake Erie to New Orleans via Cleveland and Marietta is in sight.

GALE BLOWS DISASTER ALONG COAST OF ENGLAND

(By Cable to The Age.)

London, Jan. 9.—Stormy weather still continues on the British coasts, and several shipping casualties are reported. The Glasgow steamer Stella Marl collided seven miles off Holyhead with the Spanish vessel Oris, and both sank. The crews were saved in the boats after drifting all night. The Belfast schooner Dispatch collided with the Sunderland steamer Dinnington off Ramsgate. The Dispatch was towed into Ramsgate, but the Dinnington is believed to have sunk with her crew of 10 men. Several other vessels were driven ashore at different points, their crews being rescued with great difficulty.

WHISKY DROPS WITH TEMPERATURE

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 9.—Following a general order which was issued from the headquarters in New York city, all the distilleries under the management of the so-called trust will quote goods at $22 as a basis price of the finished product. This is the lowest price in many years and is a drop of 1 cent from the quotations which have been given out during the past few weeks. The cut in prices by the trust houses means another stab at the independents, though it is expected they will meet the reduction.

WOOLGROWERS FLOCK TO DENVER

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Denver, Jan. 9.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Joint national live stock convention and the National Woolgrowers' association. Delegates are flocking into Denver to attend the gatherings, and every hotel in the city is taxed almost to its utmost to accommodate the stockmen. The woolgrowers will have the first call in the proceedings. President F. E. Warren will deliver his annual address and a resolution for the appointment of a committee to reconsider the matter of the proposed reorganization of the National Live Stock association will be introduced. This is one of the important matters to come before the convention.

SUCCESS CROWNED BIG DAY OF THE SALVATION ARMY

Theatre Positively Jammed
By an Attentive Audience.

COL. MARGETTS AND CAPTAIN IVINGS GIVEN OVATION BY COSHOCTON FRIENDS.

Afternoon Meeting Surprised Even Adjutant Brindley—Special Services were all Successful.

The Sixth Street theatre, ground floor, balcony, gallery and boxes alike, was filled to its fullest capacity Sunday afternoon with people gathered there to hear the two noted leaders in the Salvation Army, Col. Margetts of New York and Staff Captain Ivings of Cleveland.

Col. Margetts was in charge of the meeting and the principal feature of it was his address, but there were in addition to that several musical selections and short talks by Staff Captain Ivings and Adjutant Brindley, the latter having charge of the work in Coshocton.

The Staff Captain is secretary of the work among the young people in this province of the army and the province includes the southern states as well as Kentucky and Ohio making his position no easy one and his responsibility far from light.

Hustle on Olives

Coshocton had a regular olive festival Saturday. The Central Grocery Co.—an enterprising firm that believes in the value of printers' ink—advertised a special sale for Saturday only of 16-oz bottle of fine olives for 20 cents. And they sold 125 bottles of the briny dainties. That shows two things; that Coshocton people are fond of olives and that they scan the columns of the paper closely for bargains.

He spoke of the great revival in the work among the children and the many converts made among them. The work was never in a more prosperous condition.

He told too of the immense number of Christmas dinners the Army had distributed and said that 6000 people had been fed in Cleveland alone. This was all on one Saturday and on Monday evening. The poor children of the city were given their treat in the Gray's armory.

Adjutant Brindley next spoke briefly. He said that he was much pleased with the crowd which had assembled and that it far exceeded his expectation.

He said that the Army is not a new institution; it is of an age to speak with authority.

The Army is not the only good thing on earth but one of many and should work along with the churches for the betterment of the condition of mankind.

Col. Margetts next spoke taking for his subject "Is a Child Worth Saving?"

He said that he was much interested in the young people not only because he has the care of all the young people in Salvation Army circles throughout the union but also because he and Mrs. Margetts have quite a little colony of children of their own.

He said that he was delighted with children and that no one can help the young and have the same sympathy with them that a parent can. The Savior was very fond of young people and said upon one occasion that those who would be great in the Kingdom of Heaven must be "as a little child."

Purity of heart and mind are one of the best foundation stones of character.

If all the leaders of the world, the leaders in every branch of the world's work, would be as pure in heart and mind as a child, what a nation this would be!

Children are worth saving because of what they are.

They are intelligent and that intelligence is worth saving and it is worth going to any amount of trouble to do.

We need youthful intelligence to help present the gospel in the most attractive manner.

Children are worth saving for what they can do in the natural world. It is wonderful what the children can do.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GOVERNOR

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Coshocton, O., Jan. 9.—Governor Peabody died suddenly at his residence here Sunday afternoon.

SUCH A SURPRISE!

—New York Press.

COSHOCTON POPULATION THE TOPIC OF MUCH COMMENT

A lively interest has been awakened by the announcement of the special enumeration of Coshocton's population that will be taken by The Age. In order to give equal opportunity to all who desire to register an estimate, the exact limits of the territory to be included in their count will be defined now. Besides the territory within the corporation boundaries this enumeration will include the board of trade second and third additions and the Kenilworth addition. Estimates should be calculated on that basis.

The population of Coshocton as shown by the Federal Census of 1900 was 6466. This did not include the addition known as "Oklahoma," which at that time had 366 people. That addition will of course be included in The Age's special enumeration.

Everybody is welcome to a guess on what the count will show. To the person making the nearest correct guess a prize will be given, consisting of a handsome 100-piece dinner set of the Pope-Gosser make.

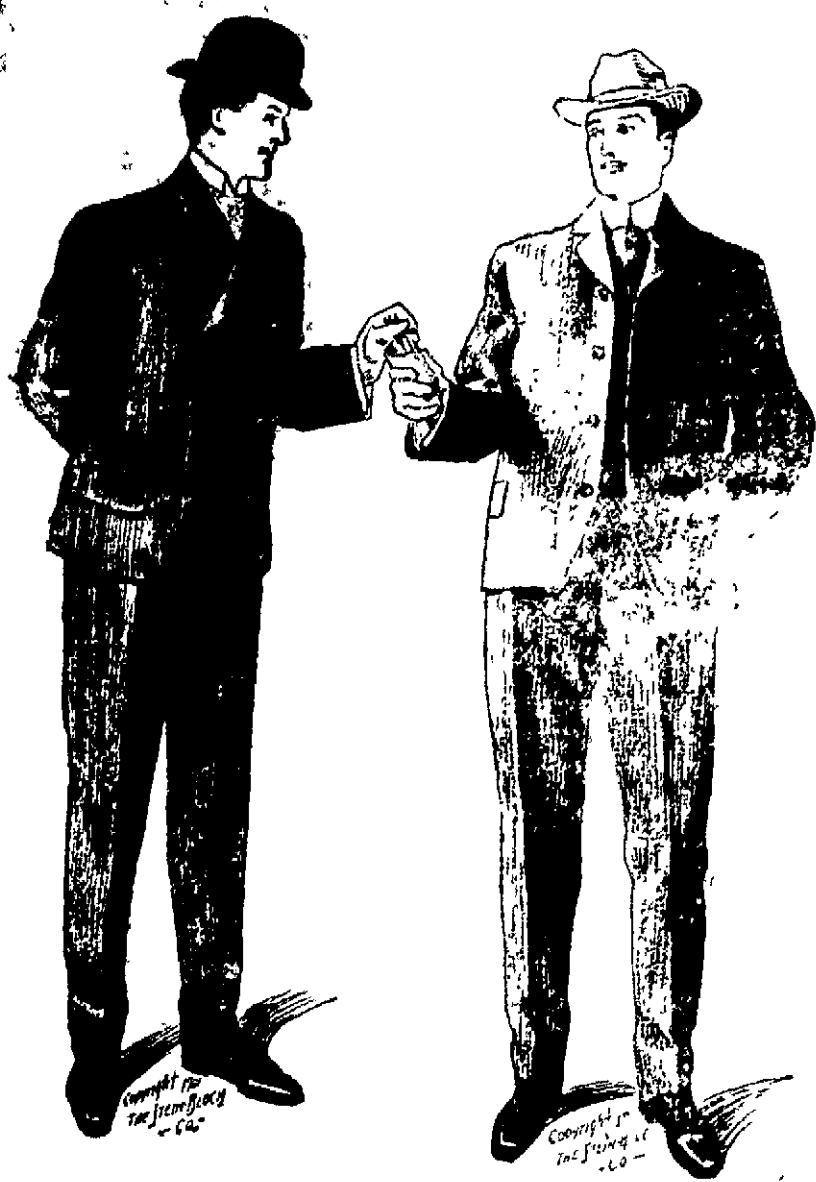

In case two or more persons guess the exact number, the prize will be awarded to the one whose guess was first received at The Age office. No person connected with The Age office will be permitted to participate in the contest. Guesses will be received only in the form of the following coupon properly filled out:

AMUSEMENTS

Tonight For a Week.

Many new faces will be seen with Chas. Lamb's Murray Comedy Company this season. They open a week's engagement at the Sixth Street theatre tonight, playing the comedy drama "Just Plain Folks," a well written portrayal of New York life brimful of interesting and exciting events, a series of well contrived dramatic situations interspersed with comedy. The company is stronger than ever and consists of eighteen people, headed by the clever little comedienne Miss Clara Hazel. A full line of specialties will be given between each act which alone are well worth the price of admission. Tonight one lady will be admitted free with each paid thirty cent ticket. Seats now on sale at Siegrist & Williams'.

My Wife's Family.

Coming to the Sixth Street theatre on Thursday January 12 Hal Stephens and Harry Linton will produce their newest farcical success, "My Wife's Family." The mere fact of the company being headed by these gentlemen is proof positive that the show will be all that is claimed for it. The piece is not a "rehash" version of something seen here before, but positively new and up to date, and will be produced by the original New York cast, among whom will be found Anita Lawrence, Isabel Allan, Mabelle Grey, Blanche Brennan, Marie Roslyn, J. Edward Pierce, Tom Lee, H. B. Pierce, James C. Murphy, Royce Alton and a few others well known in the musical and comedy line.

For many of the old theatre goers, and for scores of the new who, like their fathers and grandfathers have come to know and love Donnan

Thompson author of the "Old Homestead" it is enough to say that his latest success "Our New Minister" which comes to the Sixth Street theatre tonight is considered by press, public and managers the greatest

"When it ends in a honeymoon, ma belle Constance!" he said swiftly.
His sudden words, removing all doubts as to his purpose, awoke such repugnance in her that for a moment aversion was paramount to every other feeling. Again she looked without, but only the solitude of the fields and forests met her glance.
The remoteness of the situation gave the very boldness of his plan feasibility. Was he not his own magistrate in his own province? Why, then, he had thought, waste the golden moments? He had but one need now—a study of physical beauty against a crimson background.
"To think of such loveliness lost in the wilderness!" he said softly. "The gates of art should all open to you. Why should you play to rustic bumpskins when the world of fashion would gladly receive you? I am a poor prophet if you would not be a success in town. It is not always easy to get a hearing, to procure an audience, but means could be found. Soon your name would be on every one's lips. Your art is fresh. The faded world likes freshness. The cynical town runs to artless art as an antidote to its own poison. Most of the players are wrinkled and worn. A young face will seem like a new grown white rose."
She did not answer. Unresponsive as a statue, she did not move. The sun shot beneath an obstructing branch, and long, searching shafts found access to the room. Mauville moved forward impetuously until he stood on the verge of the sunlight on the satinwood floor.
"May I not devote myself to this cause, Constance?" he continued. "You are naturally resentful toward me now. But can I not show you that I have your welfare at heart? If you were

"Go in there," he said curtly.
As ambitious as you are attractive, what might you not do? Art is long, our days are short; youth flies like a summer day."
His glance sought hers questioningly, still no reply. Only a wave of blood surged over her neck and brow, while her eyes fell. Then the glow receded, leaving her white as a snow image.
"Come," he urged. "May I not find for you those opportunities?"
He put out his eager hand as if to touch her. Then suddenly the figure in the window came to life and shrank back, with widely opened eyes fixed upon his face. His gaze could not withstand hers, man of the world though he was, and his free manner was replaced by something resembling momentary embarrassment. Conscious of this new and annoying feeling, his egoism rose in arms, as if protesting against the novel sensation, and his next words were correspondingly violent.
"Put off your stage manners!" he exclaimed. "You are here at my pleasure. It was no whim, my carrying you off. After you left I went to the manor, where I tried to forget you. But nights of revelry—why should I not confess it?—could not efface your memory." His voice unconsciously sank to unreserved candor. "Your presence filled these halls. I could no longer say, 'Why should I trouble myself about one who has no thought for me?'"
Breathing hard, he paused, gazing beyond her, as though renewing the memories of that period.
"Learning you were in the neighboring town," he continued, "I went there with no further purpose than to see you. On the journey perhaps I indulged in foolish fancies. How would you receive me? Would you be pleased, annoyed? So I tempted my fancy with air castles, like the most unsophisticated lover. But you had no word of welcome; scarcely listened to me and hurried away. I could not win you as I desired. The next best way was this."
He concluded with an impassioned gesture, his gaze eagerly seeking the first sign of lenity or favor on her part, but his confession seemed futile. Her eyes, suggestive of tender possibilities, expressed now but coldness and obduracy. In a revulsion of feeling he forgot the distance separating the buskined from the fashionable world, the tragic scatterlings from the conventions of Vanity Fair. He forgot all save that she was to him now the one unparagoned entirety, overriding other memories.

"Will not a life of devotion atone for this day, Constance?" he cried. "Do you know how far reaching are these lands? All the afternoon you drove through them, and they extend as wide in the other direction. These—my name—are yours!"
A shade of color swept over her brow.
"Answer me," he urged.
"Drive back and I will answer you." "Drive back and you will laugh at me," he retorted moodily. "You would make a woman's bargain with me." "Is yours a man's with me?" she said contemptuously.
"What more can I do?"
"Undo what you have done. Take me back!"
"I would cut a nice figure doing that! No; you shall stay here."
He spoke angrily. Her disdain at his proposal not only injured his pride, but awoke his animosity. On the other hand, his words demonstrated she had not improved her own position. If he meant to keep her there he could do so, and opposition made him only more obstinate, more determined to press his advantage. Had she been more polite—Juliana off the stage as well as on—she, whose artifice was glossed by artlessness—
Her lashes drooped, her attitude became less aggressive, her eyes, from beneath their dark curtains, rested on him for a moment. What it was in that glance so effective is not susceptible to analysis. Was it the appeal that awakened the quixotic sense of honor, the helplessness arousing compassion, the irresistible quality of a brimming eye so fatal to masculine calculation and positiveness? Whatever it was, it dispelled the contraction on the land baron's face, and—despite his threats, vows—he was swayed by a look.
"Forgive me," he said tenderly.
"You will drive back?"
"Yes, I will win you in your own way, fairly and honestly! I will take you back though the whole country laughs at me. Win or lose, back we go, for—I love you!" And impetuously he threw his arm around her waist.
Simulation could not stand the test. It was no longer acting, but reality; she had set herself to a role she could not perform. Blating him for that free touch, she forcibly extricated herself with an exclamation and an expression of countenance there was no mistaking. From Mauville's face the glad light died. He regarded her once more cruelly, vindictively.
"You dropped the mask too soon," he said coldly. "I was not prepared for rehearsal, although you were perfect. You are even a better actress than I thought you, than which"—mockingly—"I can pay you no better compliment."

She looked at him with such scorn he laughed, though his eyes flashed.
"Bravo!" he exclaimed.
While thus confronting each other a footfall sounded without, the door burst open, and the driver of the coach, with features drawn by fear, unceremoniously entered the room. The patron turned on him enraged, but the latter, without noticing his master's displeasure, exclaimed hurriedly:
"The antienters are coming!"
The actress uttered a slight cry and stepped toward the window, when she was drawn back by an irresistible force.
"Pardou me," said a hard voice, from which all passing compunction had vanished. "Be kind enough to come with me."
"I will follow you, but"—Her face expressed the rest.
"This way then!"
He released her, and together they mounted the stairway. For a long time a gentle footfall had not passed those various landings; not since the ladies in hoops, with powdered hair, had ascended or descended with attendant cavaliers bewigged, beruffled, bedizen-ed. The land baron conducted his companion to a distant room upstairs, the door of which he threw open.
"Go in there," he said curtly.
She hesitated on the threshold. So remote was it from the main part of the great manor the apartment had all the requirements of a prison.
"You needn't fear," he continued, reading her thoughts. "I'm not going to be separated from you—yet! But we can see what is going on here."
Again she mutely obeyed him and entered the room. It was a commodious apartment, where an excellent view was offered of the surrounding country on three sides.
From the narrow, dark crimson ribbon, left behind by the flaunting sun, a faint reflection entered the great open windows of the chamber and revealed Mauville gazing without, pistol in hand; Constance leaning against the curtains and the driver of the coach standing in the center of the room, quaking inwardly and shaking outwardly. This last named had found an old blunderbuss somewhere, useful once undoubtedly, but of questionable service now.
Meanwhile Oly looks had not returned. Lying faithfully closed and locked. The storm cloud, gathering during the life of Mauville's predecessor, was now ready to burst, the impending catastrophe hastened by the heir's want of discretion and his failure to adjust difficulties amicably.

A branch of a tree grated against the window as Mauville scanned the surrounding garden. Then his eye fell upon an indistinct figure stealing slowly across the sward in the partial darkness. This object was immediately followed by another and yet another. To the observer's surprise they wore the head gear of Indians.
Suddenly the patron heard the note of the whistler, the nocturnal songster that mourns unseen. It was succeeded by the sharp tones of a saw-whet and the distinct mew of a catbird. A wild pigeon began to coo softly in another direction and was answered by a thrush. The listener vaguely realized that all this unexpected melody came from the Indians, who had by this time surrounded the house and took this method of communicating with one another.
An interval of portentous silence was followed by a loud knocking at the front door, which din reverberated through the hall, echoing and re-echoing the vigorous summons. Mauville at this leaned from the window, and as he did so there arose a hooting from the sward as though bedlam had broken loose. Maintaining his post, the heir called out:
"What do you want, men?"
At these words the demonstration became more turbulent, and amid the threatening hubbub voices arose, showing too well the purpose of the gathering. Aroused to a fever of excitement by the shooting of the tenants, they were no longer skulking, stealthy Indians, but a riotous assemblage of antienters expressing their determination in an ominous chorus:
"Hang the land baron!"
In the midst of this far from reassuring uproar a voice arose like a trumpet:
"We are the messengers of the Lord, and strong by his wrath!"
"You are the messenger of the devil, Little Thunder!" Mauville shouted decisively.
A crack of a rifle admonished the land baron that the jest might have cost him dear.

CHAPTER XIV.
AFTER this brief hostile outbreak in the garden below the right wing Mauville prepared to make as effective defense as lay in his power and looked around for his aid, the driver of the coach, but that quaking individual had taken advantage of the excitement to disappear.
The young girl, too, had availed herself of the opportunity while he was at the window and vanished.
"Why, the slippery jade's gone!" he exclaimed, staring around the room, confounded for the moment. Then, recovering himself, he hurriedly left the chamber, more apprehensive lest she should get out of the manor than that the tenants should get in.
For the moment he almost forgot the antienters. He hastily traversed the upper hall, but was rewarded with no sight of her. He gazed down the stairs eagerly, with no better result. The front door was still closed as he had left it.
"Yes, she's gone," he repeated. "What a fool I was to have trusted her to herself for a moment!"
A new misgiving arose, and he started. What if she had succeeded in leaving the manor? He knew and distrusted Little Thunder and his cohorts.

Pattern For Lady's Shirt Waist Designed by Martha Dean

Notwithstanding the rumor that goes forth every few months that the shirt waist is to be worn no more it still continues its career. Most women know that it is too necessary to be relegated to the past. Its practicability and wide range in design and quality insure for it continued popularity, and so long as the tailor-made suits are fashionable the clever woman will limit her blouses only by the length of her purse strings or the amount of her ingenuity. In the model shown here a triumph has been achieved in the omission of the shoulder seam, thus carrying out the idea of long, sloping shoulders as nothing else will do. The fullness in the sleeve is laid in a box plait which extends up over the shoulder into the collar. There it may be fastened by buttons, or, if the waist is of silk, by buckles or fancy "baby pins." The fancy yoke and cuff add not a little to the smart design, although their use is optional. The back is the plain French style, and the waist, like all the newer styles, is finished by a peplum. Mercerized cottons and silks are suitable for shirt waists, although the style is one that may be followed in making a costume of any of the new dress weaves. Pattern No. 522. Sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure.

With no definite purpose of making further, he nevertheless walked mechanically down the corridor and suddenly discerned Constance in a passage, where she had inadvertently fled.
At the end of this narrow hall a shadow looked almost directly out upon the circular brick dovecot, now an indistinct outline, and on both sides doors, one of which she was vainly endeavoring to open when he approached. "Unfortunately, the door is locked," he said ironically. "Meanwhile, as this spot has no strategic advantages, suppose we change our base of defense."
Realizing how futile would be assistance, she accompanied him more to the chamber in the wing where he had determined to make his last defense. After closing and locking the door he lighted one of many candles on the mantel.
The flickering glare fell upon the young actress standing, hand upon her heart, listening with bated breath, and Mauville, with ominous expression, brooding over that chance which sent the leaseholders to the manor on that night of nights.
The violent crash of a heavy body at the front of the house and a tumult of voices on the porch, succeeded by a din in the hall, announced that the first barrier had been overcome and the antienters were in possession of the lower floor of the manor. Mauville had started toward the door when the anticipation in the young girl's eyes held him to the spot. Inaccessible, she was the more desired. Her reserve was fuel to his flame, and at that moment, while his life hung in the balance, he forgot the rebuff he had received and how she had nearly played upon him.
Words fell from his lips, unpremeditated, eloquent, voicing those desires:

Soon they were chest to chest, which had grown in the solitude of the manor. Passionately he addressed her, knowing the climax to his difficulties was at hand. Once near her he could not be at peace without her, he vowed, and this outcome had been inevitable. All this he uttered impetuously, at times incoherently, but as he concluded she only clasped her hands helplessly, solely conscious of the uproar below, which spread from the main hall to the adjoining rooms.

THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA.
The surrender of Port Arthur to the Japanese after an heroic defense an event of far-reaching importance and may exert a decisive effect on the course of the war. Much depends, of course, upon the developments in home politics. The war is not popular in Russia and never has been. Of late it has been stigmatized as a "senseless war." The inefficiency of their navy and uniform misfortunes of their arms have conspired to deepen popular discontent with a war brought on by the
and brutal ring and the agents of bureaucracy and to lend point and weight to the remarkably bold reform movement of the present winter. Professor Leo Wiener an excellent authority on Russian affairs in this country, said a few days ago: "The fate of the Baltic fleet will to a great extent dictate the government's next step. A disaster in the fleet will hasten the reforms, and a decisive victory will again delay them." This is the view held in well informed circles in Berlin and London also.

The Czar is now generally understood to be a man of amiable character and benevolent intention fatally deficient in the iron will essential to ruler fated to rule the Russian empire in a time of transition. He is a man of infirm purpose, who yields to changing moods and external pressures. The London Spectator predicts that the fall of Port Arthur will give the Russian autocracy as terrible a shock as the fall of Sebastopol, which was the forerunner of the emancipa-tion of the serfs. Nicholas II. lacks resolution to go either with the reactionaries or the reformers and keeps safely in the middle path. It is a grave question whether a policy of suits neither side in an irreconcilable conflict like that now raging Russia will not prove the most dangerous instead of the safest in stormy times ahead. "The future of his dynasty and his empire," says
the Spectator, "rests on the result of war which he cannot personally conduct and which is going badly.
His only chance of maintaining the existing system without great concessions is a colossal and dramatic victory."

Now the "colossal and dramatic story" in the east has come, truly,
it is a victory for Japan and a great disaster for Russia. Count Saito, at Washington, and the government officials at St. Petersburg, hardly assure inquirers that the fall of Port Arthur has been discounted and that the war will proceed more calmly than ever to the bitter end, which will be a complete Russian triumph. But such talk blinds

EVA BOOTH SPOKE IN BOSTON

[By Telegraph to The Age.]
Boston, Jan. 9.—Miss Eva C. Booth, the new commander of all the Salvation Army forces in the United States, was given an enthusiastic welcome by two large audiences here. It was Miss Booth's first public appearance here since she came from Toronto to take up more responsible duties in this country. Each person in the audience had been supplied with a banner bearing the word "Welcome," and Miss Booth's entrance upon the stage was the signal for a spectacular and prolonged demonstration.

BLAZE IN KITCHEN

A small fire broke out at the home of George Layton on East Main street Monday afternoon. The kitchen was partially burned but no serious damage was done. The house is a small one owned by Foy Cochran and the fire was almost extinguished before the hose carts arrived.

Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller.
The supreme court of the United States has seldom had a more hard-working chief justice than Melville Weston Fuller. Chief Justice Fuller was born in Augusta, Me., in 1833. He was appointed chief justice by President Cleveland in 1888, and if he lives to administer the oath of office to President Roosevelt on the 4th of next March it will be his fifth performance of this function.

Steamer's Experience.

New York, Jan. 9.—The British steamer Zambesi, from Savannah for Bremen with a cargo of cotton and phosphate, put into this port after a most eventful voyage, with her cargo of cotton on fire and several of her crew sick. Captain Rooney of the Zambesi reports that he sailed from Savannah on New Year's day. The vessel experienced very severe weather.
All went well, however, until Jan.
5, when the steamer struck a submerged wreck, which broke the stem and stove in several of the bow plates under water, causing the forepeak to fill with water. The ship was immediately headed for this port, nearly 500 miles distant. Heavy weather prevailed and furious seas flooded the forward decks. On Jan. 6 volumes of smoke were seen pouring from the forehatch, and it was evident the cotton in the hold was on fire. The ship's hose was quickly connected and the fire was soon under control.

Japanese Celebrate.

New York, Jan. 9.—The fall of Port Arthur was celebrated here by a mass meeting of Japanese residents of the city, held in Carnegie hall. The affair was intended to be solely for the Japanese residents, 500 of whom attended, and the only invited guests were General Stewart L. Woodford, former minister to Spain, and Alexander Tison, both of whom spoke.

WILLIAM HOWARD PASSES AWAY

Aged Blind Man Expires at The County In-
firmmary.

William Howard, who with halting steps was for many years a familiar
passed away at the county infirmery
at three o'clock Monday morning.
Death was due to the infirmities of old age, he having passed the seventy-eighth milestone. For a month or more he has been in feeble health but he retained his faculties and sensibilities until the hand of death was laid upon him.

Mr. Howard's career was a varied
one. He was born in Canada but most of his long life was spent on this side of the great lakes. For many years he conducted a hotel in Pittsburg before coming to Coshocton.
Total blindness overtook him after he had reached middle age and the people of Coshocton remembers him only after his life had really run its course and was fading from its zenith.

His days of activity and ambition
had been spent before he came here and his affliction caused him to eke out an existence as best he might by making brooms and conducting a news stand. Yet his cheerful, kindly manner never entirely deserted him in the face of adversity and he leaves many friends in this city who will venerate and respect his memory.

June 16, 1895 the old gentleman was taken to the county infirmery
and he has made his home there since. He suffered with no particular disease but his system gradually was led away until the end came.

Mr. Howard was twice married.
His second wife died August 1, 1898.
He is survived by three sons: Harry,
who, it is supposed, is in the Philippines Islands; Fred, who resides in this city; and Clarence, who is located at Kalamazoo, Mich.

The funeral services will be conducted at the infirmery Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock and interment made at South Lawn cemetery.

National Board of Trade.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The official program of recommendations and resolutions to be considered at the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the national board of trade, which begins here Tuesday, Jan. 17, has been made public by Secretary William R. Tucker.
An unusually large number of resolutions of interest to the business interests of the country have been proposed by representative commercial bodies for consideration, chief among which are those relating to the merchant marine, the interstate commerce law, reciprocity, uniform bills of lading, reduction of the tax on alcohol, and improvement of various waterways.

GOV. HIGGINS CALLS ON PRESIDENT

Washington, Jan. 9.—Governor Higgins of New York and Nevada L.
Stranahan, collector of the port of New York, dined with the president at the White House, the other guests being Mr. Gifford Pinchot and Commissioner of Corporations Garfield.
Governor Higgins said his visit was purely social and fulfillment of a promise he made some time ago to come here and take dinner with the president.

YOUNG GOULD PULLS FOR STUDENTS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]
New York, Jan. 9.—Following the receipt of a letter from Kingdon Gould asking clemency for the four students who were suspended in connection with the attempt to seize him for the sophomore dinner just before the holidays,
announcement has been made by Dean Hutton of the school of applied sciences of Columbia university that the disciplined men, Aigeltinger, Cauchois, Doty and Finch, will be allowed to return to their work.

While women are invading nearly all of the employments heretofore belonging to men, milliners, both here and abroad report a growing difficulty in finding girls willing to devote themselves to the art of making hats.

The building trades of San Francisco, which include 60 unions and 21, 000 men, intend to erect a "temple"
which will accommodate all the unions and the general officers. It is expected to cost about $100,000.

MRS. NELDON GIVES UP STRUGGLE

Roscoe Lady Expires From Siege of Typhoid Fever.

Mrs. Matilda Neldon, wife of Samuel Neldon, succumbed to typhoid fever at her home in Roscoe Monday morning at four o'clock. About three weeks ago she contracted the fever while nursing her mother, Mrs. Richards, near Mohawk, who is still in a critical condition. She was unable to withstand the ravages of the fatal disease and there has been little encouragement in her condition for several days.

Mrs. Neldon was born near Mohawk about thirty-six years ago.
She has been a member of the M. E.
church since girlhood first attending the Wilson chapel near Mohawk,
and was a kindly, christian woman,
self-sacrificing and noble in all her acts. She was united in marriage to Samuel Neldon, of Blooming Grove and they moved to Roscoe about five years ago. Besides her husband, Mrs.
Neldon is survived by five children
all living at home. They are Wilda, Clara, Mina, Doris and Richard. Mrs.
Shrigley, of this city, is a sister.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Maughman at the Roscoe M. E. church Wednesday morning at ten o'clock and interment will be made at the Prairie Chapel cemetery.

DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Coshocton County Agricultural society held in the city hall Monday afternoon the following directors were re-elected for another term of two years
the vote cast for them being as follows:

- C. H. Glover, 41
 - Alex Stewart, 42
 - Robert Boyd, 50
 - W. S. Simon, 50
 - E. L. Lybarger 54
 - W. B. Miller, 42
 - Henry Clark, 56
- The others who were placed in nomination and the vote they received were as follows:
- N. G. Tompkins, 28
 - John Aronhalt, 19
 - J. J. Wood, 11
 - S. R. McCormick, 13

Next Monday morning at ten o'clock
the directors will meet at Secretary Boyd's office to elect officers for the ensuing year.

President Simmons acted as chairman of the meeting Monday afternoon and Secretary Boyd kept the minutes. T. L. Montgomery and M.
A. McCConnell acted as tellers. The attendance at the meeting was very good.

Visited By a Tornado.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 9.—A tornado, something unheard of before in this section, swept through a portion of the timberlands of the Mormon colony of Chutehupo, in Chihuahua, Mexico, devastating a strip of fine timber and doing other property some damage.
No lives were lost.

Dry Kiln Destroyed.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 9.—Fire destroyed the dry kiln, its contents and a lot of lumber at the Paducah Veneer and Lumber company's plant. The loss was $8,000, insurance about $2,500.
The fire originated from a spark from the smokestack.

WILL KING DIED AT NOON

Son of W. H. King Expires After Struggle With Dread Malady.

William King died at one o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of his father, Henry King on North Third street, having been ill since the latter part of November with consumption.

Mr. King was one of the best known men in Coshocton and had many genuine friends. He was born here nearly thirty-five years ago, on April the 10th, 1870, and lived here
the greater part of his life. He is survived by his father and mother, four sisters and four brothers to whom the sympathy of the community goes out.

The funeral services will be conducted by Dr. Clark of Grace M. E. church at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the King home. Interment will be made at Oak Ridge.

WOMAN'S VOICE AND THE UNKIND COMMENTS ON IT

The voice of the average American woman is a fruitful source of comment—chiefly, it must be confessed, unkind. The Harper's Bazaar, in a recent number has the following to say upon the subject.
"In spite of the vast amount of perhaps kindly meant criticism which has been made in all quarters of late years regarding the American voice, it certainly does not improve. It is the exception to find, especially in the Middle West, an agreeable voice, and women are more faulty than men in this respect. It is urged that the rattle of the cars and the noises of all descriptions make it impracticable to use a smooth, pleasant intonation. One has to force a nasal tone, we are told, in order to be heard in the tumult which "civilization has raised about us." When one considers the charm which a sweet voice gives to its possessor, one wonders at the general neglect of measures to obtain it. Complexions fade, dentists ruin beautiful mouths, the eyes lose their glow,

the chin and the neck crease and bulge—but the speaking voice never shares with the nose the distinction of earthly immortality. It may weaken or crack somewhat with old age, but a thrilling speaking voice never wholly loses its power. Every one should determine that she will learn to pitch and modulate and manage her voice properly. Nearly every one has it in her power, if she only chooses to attend to it."

Pulverized Shell Beach as Hard as Cement---Big Preparations For Annual Event This Month.

Daytona, Fla., Jan. 9.—The condition of the Ormond-Daytona beach for the automobile race meet, January 22-23, is magnificent; according to old residents it was never better. Being entirely different in formation from the northern beaches, or in fact, any other beach in the world, has been the cause of its great reputation. Its sand is composed largely of the shells of the coquina clam, peculiar to this part of Florida. This shell is about one-half an inch long and very thin. For ages nature has been rolling them up, washing them back into the surf and pulverizing them. Examined under the microscope, each particle is round, unfit for mortar, builders say, because its smoothness prevents it from holding together; yet, strange to contemplate, the very moment a wave leaves the wet, apparently soft beach, these round particles settle down into almost a cement as hard as asphalt, beyond the comprehension of one who has not seen it.

Made For Autos. Surely it must have been made for the automobile, for, regardless of weather conditions, there is no mud, no dust, tires are never heated owing to the moisture, and an exploded tire is unknown. Here, too, the great dangers of road and track racing are entirely eliminated and men can never build a road as hard and smooth. Repairs are unnecessary, as twice each 24 hours it is entirely rebuilt by the tides. Immense holes may be dug out, but the next tide hides every trace.

Being almost level and with an average rise and fall of only two feet nine inches at extreme low tide, this beach is from 300 to 500 feet wide and can be used from two hours after until two hours before high tide, thus giving an average of seven to eight hours for automobilizing some part of each day.

Father of Florida Beach. J. F. Hathway, the veteran autoist, familiarly called the father of the Florida beach racing, who suggested and organized the Florida East Coast Automobile association under whose auspices the Ormond-Daytona beach tournaments have developed a world-wide reputation, is located here for the winter. In 1900 he bought one of the first motor cars ever seen in Florida and had many queer experiences with the native Crackers, who at that time were very much opposed to these "new fangled machines." One, whose horse he frightened called his automobile a "hell cart" and threatened to shoot him if he did not get out of town in a hurry. Behold the developments! This man still resides here and now runs a motor car himself, at least, tries to run one. Recently being on the beach something went wrong with the reversing gear and the car backed into the ocean, where it remained until his old reliable white horse, called Rock of Ages, pulled it out. In the meantime some boys printed a placard, "Rock of Ages, I Cling to Thee" and fastened it on the rear of the automobile, greatly to the amusement of the spectators.

Greatest Auto Town. Great changes have taken place here during the past five years and there are more automobiles in Daytona now than in any other town of its population in the world.

Daytona has erected two new hotels, and nearly all of the 20 others have made extensive improvements and all will be filled. At Ormond 300 men have been busy on the addition to the great hotel and a new railroad bridge across the Halifax river so that passenger trains can run to the very portals of the hotel. A large garage and a chauffeurs club house have been erected with all modern conveniences. At the hotel on the beach substantial additions and improvements have been made in preparation for the rush to the races.

HARD NUTS TO CRACK FOR ASPIRING PEDAGOGUES

Questions That Will Require Gray Matter For Any One to Answer.

The board of county examiners, consisting of Professors Everhart, Pigman and McCurdy, propounded the following questions at the January examinations held at the Coshoc-ton high school building Saturday.

United States History and Civil Government.

1. What colonies formed a league known as the United Colonies of New England? Name a New England colony that was not admitted to this union, and give reason.

2. Name four colonies that were founded to escape religious persecution. Name two colonies founded for other reasons and state the motive that caused the founding of each.

3. Give three reasons why the New England States were opposed to (a) the war of 1812 (b) the war with Mexico.

4. Mention an important invention or practical application of machinery in each of the following periods: (a) 1790-1810, (b) 1830-1850, (c) 1860-1880.

5. State the cause and results of the French and Indian war.

6. Make a brief estimate of the statesmanship of Hamilton, Webster, and Clay.

7. Explain the meaning of the term DRAFTING in connection with the affairs of the civil war. At what period of the war was the draft resorted to? Explain the term "bounty-jumping."

8. To how many representatives in the electoral college is the state of Ohio entitled? What is meant by electors at large?

9. State three rights assured by the Constitution to all persons in this country accused of crime.

10. Distinguish between direct and indirect taxes and give an example of each.

Railway Promotion.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—The announcement is made that R. H. Wallace, formerly assistant passenger agent of the Erie railroad, with headquarters in this city, has been appointed general passenger agent of the same road, with headquarters in New York. J. D. Brown, former city ticket agent here of the same road, has been appointed assistant general passenger agent, with headquarters in this city. Mr. Wallace takes the place of D. W. Cooke, who has been promoted to assistant general traffic manager of both the passenger and freight business.

Blue Vitriol In Water Supply.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Professor Dettmer of Ohio State university complains to Prosecutor Taylor that he has been poisoned by the use of city water, and he urges a grand jury investigation. A local concern that manufactures photographing paper says its product has been almost ruined because of the vitriol in the water. The health officers have been placing blue vitriol in the city reservoirs to kill typhoid fever germs.

For Killing a Patient.

Athens, O., Jan. 9.—D. Elmer Jones of Gallia county, a former attendant in the Athens insane hospital, was sentenced to serve 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary for killing Stephen Cain of Perry county, a patient under his care. Jones, with two other attendants, Nathaniel A. Weatherhall and David S. Stewart, also of Gallia county, were punishing Cain and death resulted. All three were indicted for manslaughter.

Ohio College of Elections.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—The 23 members of the Ohio college of elections convened in the supreme court chamber at noon, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati presiding, and cast the vote of Ohio for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Besieged by Arabs.

Constantinople, Jan. 9.—Reinforcements have been sent from Hodeida and Damascus to the relief of the garrison of Sanaa, capital city of Yemen, Arabia, 110 miles from Hodeida, and having a population of 40,000, which has been beleaguered for several weeks by Arab tribes. Official circles are confident that the garrison can hold out until the arrival of succor.

Stoessel's Return.

Tokyo, Jan. 9.—General Stoessel and the other Russian officers who have been given their parole will be brought to Nagasaki on a Japanese transport. It is probable they will remain at Nagasaki for a few days and will then sail for Russia on a French steamer via the Suez canal.

Lost in the Blizzard.

Geneva, Jan. 9.—It is said that 24 persons lost their lives in the mountains during the recent blizzard, 14 of the casualties being on the St. Bernard pass.

MOOSE CARRIED OFF HUNTER.

Caught Him on His Antlers and Swam With Him Across a Lake.

The most remarkable adventure of the season in the Maine woods is that which befell Abbott Nelson of Skowhegan recently in the woods near the forks of the Kennebec, says a Bangor (Me.) dispatch. Nelson was carried three miles through the woods on the horns of an infuriated bull moose, nearly drowned in a lake which the moose swam and then swung on the animal's horns while it did battle with another moose. Yet he lived to tell the story.

Nelson started from camp in the afternoon to shoot partridges, being armed only with a shotgun. On his return a big bull moose barred the way. Nelson fired both barrels of his shotgun into the moose and then ran for the nearest tree. The moose rushed upon the hunter with a bellow of rage that echoed through the forest.

The limb upon which Nelson had perched was only ten feet from the ground, and the moose by rearing upon his hind legs could reach him and struck at him with a pair of antlers heavy enough to knock over a tree. Seeing that he would be killed if he remained there, Nelson moved out on the limb, which was higher from the ground at its outer end, but his weight was too much and the limb broke, letting him down directly upon the animal's nose. To make things worse, his trousers became caught in the limb so that he could move neither one way nor the other, and while he was thus entangled the moose charged.

The moose missed the man, but his horns became entangled in the limb. With a mighty effort he wrenched the limb free and started off through the woods, carrying man and limb upon his horns. By this time Nelson had lost consciousness, but he was suddenly revived by being plunged into the lake which the moose was swimming.

By holding firmly to the antlers Nelson was able to keep his seat and lift his head above water. Death seemed near, for the lake was two miles across, and the moose was swimming the widest part.

But the worst was to come. Scarcely had the moose, with his burden of man and branch, reached the opposite shore of the lake when there appeared another and a larger moose, full of fight. The second moose barred the way, and at once a battle began which, says Nelson, beggared description.

The unfortunate hunter, held fast by his clothing, was banged from side to side, dashed against trees and mangled by the clashing horns until finally the cloth gave way, and he was pitched high in the air, landing in the bushes twenty-five feet away. There, bruised, cut and bleeding, he lay, unable to rise, and for an hour watched the combat between the rival kings of the forest.

HE STARTED OFF THROUGH THE WOODS, CARRYING MAN AND LIMB.

At last one of the moose, the challenger, appeared to have received his death thrust, but as he fell he made a last rush upon his antagonist, and their horns became so locked that the victor was imprisoned. In five minutes the challenging moose was dead, and then, having partially regained his strength, Nelson finished the other with his hunting knife.

Nelson obtained help on Sunday and brought out the moose.

Cinderella and Her Slipper.

Yes, I know you are saying to yourself, "That headline would have looked and sounded better had it been 'Cinderella and the Glass Slipper,'" but the writer has made a critical study of this most interesting nursery story and finds that the famous "glass" slipper properly had no place in it. The "glass" slipper is really the "fur," "cloth" or "felt" slipper, the word "glass" having been substituted through a strange misinterpretation of the story. In the original it was written "pantoufle en velin" which, being translated, would be "the fur slipper." The translator, however, wrote it as if it had been "pantoufle en verre," making the little "cinderella" fair tale covering date of

TREASURER'S NOTICE.

The time for the payment of December taxes is extended to Tuesday, January 10. On January 11, the penalty will be added to all unpaid taxes.

RICHARD CLARK, Treasurer, Coshocton County.

Police Warning Ignored.

New York, Jan. 9.—Despite action of the police in warning the saloon keepers of the city that the Sunday closing law must be observed, the Rames law hotels did business as usual throughout the day and saloons were also open. The only noticeable difference was that the outposts at the side entrances to the saloons were doubled, and more care was exercised in admitting customers. The police made but few more than the usual number of Sunday arrests for violation of the excise law, and many of the prisoners were discharged after arraignment in the police courts. When District Attorney Jerome was asked why the police warnings had not been heeded he said: "I am not policing the city of New York; besides, I did not say this would be a 'dry' Sunday."

To Improve Naval Gunnery.

London, Jan. 9.—With a view to improving naval gunnery the admiralty has decided to create the new post of director of naval gunnery practice, to which Captain Percy Scott will be appointed. He will be given wide powers of supervision and advice. Captain Scott is a great expert in this line, and during his periods of command of the cruisers Scylla and Terrible these vessels were ahead of all other British men-of-war in gunnery.

Fear Ice and Water.

Port Deposit, Md., Jan. 9.—Serious trouble from the ice and high water is feared for the residents of this town. A gorge at Perryville, three miles below here, has backed the water up to a depth of six feet above high water mark, and it is slowly rising. Boats are in readiness to move people to higher ground, and it is thought that many of the houses in the lower portions of the town will be deserted immediately.

INHERITED SCROFULA

When a child I had a very severe attack of Diphtheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time.

EETTINA GIRARD,

Noted Actress, Passes Away in a New York Hospital.

New York, Jan. 9.—Ettina Girard, actress, daughter of late General Ordway of Washington, died in Roosevelt hospital. Notice of her death was given to the coroner's office, which began an investigation. The woman was removed from her apartments on West Forty-first street Saturday, and at the hospital the name of Elizabeth Witter is given. It was stated that her body was claimed under the name of Ordway. The cause of death is believed to have been acute pneumonia. She had been married seven times, and on various occasions within the past seven years had been a patient in the hospitals of this city, suffering from troubles due to her mode of life. From a convent at Georgetown, in her early life she was sent to Mrs. Burr's finishing school in Washington. She was a musician and linguist, beautiful of face and figure, could ride with the best and excelled in all outdoor sports.

Two Burglars Shot.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Sitting on guard each night for a week for the reappearance of burglars who had entered his office on several previous occasions, Thomas J. Campbell, a real estate dealer, reaped the reward for his long vigil when two robbers forced an entrance to the office and were both shot by Campbell before they could make their escape. Joseph Spicer was shot in the body and will die. The other robber, whose name is unknown, managed to escape, but not before he had been shot in the leg.

Sailboat Capsized.

New Orleans, Jan. 9.—By the capsizing of a sailboat on Lake Pontchartrain three men lost their lives and two more were unconscious from exposure when rescued. They are: Michael Klen, 19; Emile Volgringer, 21, and Carl Schumacher, 21. The boat was capsized by a sudden squall. The two men who were rescued clung to the bottom of the boat for nearly two hours before they were rescued by a pleasure yacht which passed.

Apostolic Delegate Resigns.

City of Mexico, Jan. 9. — Apostolic Delegate Serafino has resigned his post and will leave for Rome next week. Mgr. Cerretti, secretary of the apostolic delegation here, will perform the duties of delegate until the new representative of the vatican arrives. Mr. Serafino has suffered from the effects of the altitude, but his physicians say he will improve in health on returning to Italy and the sea level.

Caused by a Leak.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 9.—A gas explosion at the home of Frank Parsons wrecked the house and fatally burned Mrs. Parsons, seriously burned her husband and a two-month-old baby. The explosion was caused by the accumulating of gas from a leak in a pipe.

Steamer Safe.

Rotterdam, Jan. 9.—The crew of the British steamer Hamble, from Calcutta, was rescued after being lost for ten days.

For Auto Racing

Pulverized Shell Beach as Hard as Cement—Big Preparations For Annual Event This Month.

Daytona, Fla., Jan. 9.—The condition of the Ormond-Daytona beach for the automobile race meet, January 23-28, is magnificent; according to old residents it was never better. Being entirely different in formation from the northern beaches, or in fact, any other beach in the world, has been the cause of its great reputation.

Its sand is composed largely of the shells of the coquina clam, peculiar to this part of Florida. This shell is about one-half an inch long and very thin. For ages nature has been rolling them up, washing them back into the surf and pulverizing them. Examined under the microscope, each particle is round, unfit for mortar, prevents it from holding together; yet, strange to contemplate, the very moment a wave leaves the wet, apparently soft beach, these round particles settle down into almost a cement as hard as asphalt, beyond the comprehension of one who has not seen it.

Made For Autos.

Surely it must have been made for the automobile, for, regardless of weather conditions, there is no mud, no dust, tires are never heated owing to the moisture, and an exploded tire is unknown. Here, too, the great dangers of road and track racing are entirely eliminated and men can never build a road as hard and smooth. Repairs are unnecessary, as twice each 24 hours it is entirely rebuilt by the tides. Immense holes may be dug out, but the next tide hides every trace.

Being almost level and with an average rise and fall of only two feet nine inches at extreme low tide, this beach is from 300 to 500 feet wide and can be used from two hours after until two hours before high tide, thus giving an average of seven to eight hours for automobilizing some part of each day.

Father of Florida Beach.

J. F. Hathway, the veteran autoist,

familiarly called the father of the Florida beach racing, who suggested and organized the Florida East Coast Automobile association under whose auspices the Ormond-Daytona beach tournaments have developed a world-wide reputation, is located here for the winter. In 1900 he bought one of the first motor cars ever seen in Florida and had many queer experiences with the native Crackers, who at that time were very much opposed to these "new fangled machines." One, whose horse he frightened called his automobile a "hell cart" and threatened to shoot him if he did not get out of town in a hurry. Behold the developments! This man still resides here and now runs a motor car himself, at least tries to run one. Recently being on the beach something went wrong with the reversing gear and the car backed into the ocean, where it remained until his old reliable white horse, called Rock of Ages, pulled it out. In the meantime some boys printed a placard, "Rock of Ages, I Cling to Thee" and fastened it on the rear of the automobile, greatly to the amusement of the spectators.

Greatest Auto Town.

Great changes have taken place here during the past five years and there are more automobiles in Daytona now than in any other town of its population in the world.

Daytona has erected two new hotels, and nearly all of the 20 others have made extensive improvements and all will be filled. At Ormond 300 men have been busy on the addition to the great hotel and a new railroad bridge across the Halifax river so that passenger trains can run to the very portals of the hotel. A large garage and a chauffeurs club house have been erected with all modern conveniences. At the hotel on the beach substantial additions and improvements have been made in preparation for the rush to the races.

FATHER SUES TO GAIN CHILD

Plainfield Tangle Gets Into Court But is Amicably Arranged.

Habeas corpus proceedings were brought in probate court Saturday by James B. Peoples, of Plainfield, who alleged that his daughter, Jennie May Peoples, is illegally restrained of her liberty by Alcinda Rush of the same village. It seems the young lady has lived with Alcinda Rush most of the time since her infancy. She is now about thirteen years old and her father desired that she come back to his home. Judge Donley issued a writ of habeas corpus and Sheriff Browning went out to Plainfield Saturday afternoon and brought Miss Peoples to Coshocton. After a conference of the parties and their attorneys a settlement was brought about and the habeas corpus proceedings were dismissed. Miss Margaret Peoples, sister of the young lady, was appointed her guardian and she will secure a home for her. Nicholas & Merrell represented Margaret Peoples and Levi Williams represented the girl's father.

Ministers Met.
The Coshocton Ministerial association met Monday morning in the club room at the library. After the usual reports of the condition of the work in the different churches had been given Rev. Mr. Crumley read a paper on the importance of pastoral work and some of the peculiarities connected with it. This was followed by an informal discussion after which the association adjourned to meet January the 23d.

Persia Makes Reparation.
Washington, Jan. 9.—Information has reached the state department that, complying with the insistent demands of the United States, the Persian government has made to the widow partial reparation for the murder of the Rev. Benjamin W. Labaree, an American missionary, by a gang of fanatics, and has promised that all the guilty persons involved in the crime will be punished.

STATEHOOD BILL UP IN SENATE

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Washington, Jan. 9.—The joint statehood measure will continue to be the principal topic of discussion in the United States senate during the present week, but other measures will receive attention each day during the morning hour, including the omnibus claims bill, for which Senator Warren stands sponsor. The bill comprises more than 200 pages, but the senator already has succeeded in having it read by utilizing odd hours, and thus has put a large and important part of the work of consideration to the rear. There will be an effort made to get through the bill providing for the compensation of American fishermen whose vessels were seized previous to the arbitration of 1893. This measure is in the hands of Senator Fulton, who will press it as an act of justice to men who he thinks have been discriminated against.

Week in the House.
Washington, Jan. 9.—It is the intention of the house to begin active consideration of the appropriation bills during the present week. Monday was District of Columbia day. The pension bill will be taken up for consideration Tuesday. It will be followed by the army and navy, the Indian and the District of Columbia appropriation bills. While they may not all be considered during the week, they will be ready for action. The Hill currency bill remains the unfinished business, and Friday will be devoted to pension bills.

The famous threshing machine case of the J. I. Case Company vs. Leavengood, which has been in the courts of this county for the past four and one half years, was settled Saturday.

Mr. Leavengood pays the company $150 and pays his own witnesses and the company pays the rest of the costs.

The original suit was brought for about $150. The case has been tried twice in common pleas court and twice in the circuit court. In the first trial in common pleas court the plaintiff got judgment for five dollars. The second time in the lower court the verdict was for ten dollars.

Both times the circuit court reversed the decision and the case was ready for trial for the third time in common pleas court when the compromise was reached. I. D. Chalfant, agent for the company, came here from Columbus Saturday to assist with the settlement.

A kind of fatality has followed the case through the courts. At the first trial in 1899 Mr. Nicholas, one of the attorneys, was taken with a severe chill, which marked the beginning of a long siege of illness. R. A. Powelson, who was called into take Mr. Nicholas's place, died before the termination of the suit. Capt. James, one of Mr. Leavengood's attorneys, has also been called by death.

The attorneys in the original suit were Nicholas & Merrell for the plaintiff and E. W. James and J. C. Adams for the defendant. Mr. Powelson took the place of Mr. Nicholas and Judge Roche took the place of Captain James.

SELLS GRAIN BY 100 LBS. INSTEAD OF BY BUSHEL

A unique method has been established by T. J. Hanley in his advertising today that is worthy of consideration. He has discarded the bushel—or it is his ultimate intention to do so—and prices grain and flour at so much per 100 pounds.

"That is a form of the metric system" said Mr. Hanley to an Age reporter, "and is coming into general use on the Pacific coast. It is the most sensible and plainest plan and easily understood. There is no variance in the size of the bushel under this plan, and it gives the best satisfaction. A hundred pounds is always a hundred pounds wherever you may be or whatever you may have."

GIRL MAKES SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST YOUNG MAN

Miss Mamie Potter has filed an affidavit in Mayor Rinner's court charging John Van Dusen with committing assault upon her Saturday night near the paper mill, near which the girl resides.

It seems young Van Dusen was walking home with the girl, who is deaf and dumb. Her sister accompanied them but when the assault is said to have been committed the sister ran away. Complaint was made to the authorities and Lieut. P. B. Johnston after some difficulty located the young man and locked him up.

Monday morning at 10:30 Van Dusen was arraigned before Mayor Rinner, waived the reading of the affidavit and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. The mayor fixed the time for the hearing at one o'clock and a number of witnesses were summoned including an interpreter for the deaf and dumb plaintiff, who appeared in court Monday morning with her mother and bearing the appearance of having been treated roughly. She lives with her mother, Mrs. Jack Wolfe.

PLAYED HORSE WITH FAMILY COW

Youngster Tied Sled to Bossey's Tail and The is Sad to Tell.

Arthur Finlay, the eight year old son of A. L. Finlay who lives on the Hack farm two miles and a half south of town had a thrilling sled ride Sunday.

The youngster is of an inquiring turn of mind and he argued that if a horse could pull a sleigh there was no reason why a cow should not pull a sled. Accordingly he pressed into service an amiable looking bossy and disdaining harness fastened the sled rope to her tail.

The animal thought that was rather an unusual thing to do but was too polite to make any comments and started off with her unequal load. Everything went beautifully for a while but her highness, the cow, evidently thought the time had arrived when patience ceased to be a virtue and started down the hill at a merry clip.

Of course the small boy and the sled followed and while the boy landed at the bottom smiling the sled was in fragments. The condition of the cow escaped notice but it is quite possible that she won't have to play horse any more.

Col. Margetts illustrated his points with many stories from life, many humorous and many more pathetic and kept the closest attention of his hearers all during his discourse.

A rousing reception was given the distinguished visitors a Saturday evening at city hall, and scores of people called and shook them by the hand.

Sunday morning Col. Margetts spoke in the Presbyterian church and Capt. Irving to the Methodist congregation, both making excellent addresses.

Sunday evening under the auspices of Adj. Brindley, a big farewell rally was held at city hall and attracted another immense crowd.

The visiting officers were warm in their praise of Coshocton and their words were the highest commendation to Adjutant Brindley and the splendid work he is doing here.

It was a red-letter day for the Salvation Army in Coshocton.

Haskins will have no opposition in re-election.

Edwin Miller left at noon as delegate for Cassingham local, and is probably the only miner from Coshocton who will attend the other locals all sending proxies.

The meetings will be held in the Odd Fellows temple. Next week comes the national convention at Indianapolis and all of the Coshocton gentlemen expect to go on from Columbus, and not return until about February the first.

Ohio Mine Workers.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—The Ohio Mine Workers are in convention here. One of the principal matters to come up for consideration will be a revision of the constitution relating to the payment of benefits during strikes. The experience of the past year has shown the officials that it is imperative that some restriction be made in this respect. All miners striking are now entitled to benefits.

Sick List.

ceived the sad news, and his wife was overcome with grief. Funeral services in his memory were held and were attended by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. A year later a telegram was received from the man mourned as dead, from the hospital at the Presidio, San Francisco. His father went on immediately and secured his discharge from President McKinley and brought him home.

Mr. Hagans resumed his profession but was forced to give it up and for the last two years has been in a hospital at Indianapolis. His diet during that time, and now, is of milk and eggs. His stomach is still in a precarious condition.

Mr. Hagans is thinking of resuming his profession at Columbus. He has many friends in Coshocton who are greeting him now as a modern Lazarus.

Attending Funeral.

Among the Coshocton people who went to Newcomerstown Monday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Banks, were Mr. and Mrs. John Hack and Mrs. Charles Broome. Mrs. Banks was aged about 82 years and was a sister of O. A. Vogtits, a merchant of Newcomerstown.

Are You Out of Sorts

Many People, Not Really Sick, Are Out of Sorts—The Old-Time Energy and Spirits Are Lacking.

Something is needed to restore that animation that characterized the days before the system had been overtaxed or weakened by care, work, folly, excess or worry. Good, rich blood and strong, steady nerves are essential to perfect health and enjoyment of life. When vitality is lacking, pleasures cease and work becomes a drudge and drag. Blood is the well-spring and nerves the main-spring of the body. With either of them impaired life loses much of its charm. Nothing puts animation and satisfaction into living as quickly, safely and surely as Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food. It soon brings you out of all unnatural mental or physical conditions due to either blood poverty or to nervous enfeeblement. Weigh yourself before taking it. This is the food that made the name "Chase" famous. The genuine is made only by The Dr. Chase Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Price 50 cents a box, five boxes, enough to give it a fair trial, $2.00.
